Iron From Electricity.
Two Divorces, No More?
For Swivel Chair Experts.

IN THIS INDUSTRIAL age, an announcement by the engineering foundation that iron may be produced from ore by electricity is ten thousand times more important than any news about art, literature or politics.

Melting ore and making iron with fire may soon be part of the primitive past, if engineers are not mistaken.

Iron produced electrically would be less subject to rust, and that alone would prevent an annual loss of 20,000,000 tons of steel that goes to waste through corrosion.

The Pacific coast is interested in this. No more coal mines or coal hauling necessary in steel plants. That great mountain of iron near Mexico City, or cheap, high grade iron ore, brought through the canal from Cuba, and combined with the abundant, cheap electric power of the coast, would compete advantageously with Pittsburgh and Gary.

Steel men know that their industry is still primitive. They are not as self-satisfied as Britishers at the convention of steel men, who voted to erase from their records a certain proposition, that they might not be made ridiculous. What they erased was a proposition to make steel by the Bessemer process.

Electricity may do for steel production more than was done by that Bessemer process.

HUGE REWARD SPURS HUNT FOR MURDERERS OF EDITOR

Central Press Photos

While a reward of more than $27,000 offered by newspapers of the city and state and local friends spurs on searchers for the slayers of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, the murder is being used to stir the citizens against the laxity and open timidity shown by Canton, Stark county and state officials in dealing with the underworld characters and bootlegging fraternity believed to be behind the killing. Mellett, through his paper, had waged relentless warfare against the vice law violators and lax officials. Mellett was shot down as he closed the doors of his garage after returning home at night with his wife. The photos show the garage, with the one door still unclosed, the Mellett house adjoining it and the Mellett children, left to right, Betty, Louise, Margaret, Gene and Evans.

AUTO WRECKS WOODEN AWNING

SHERIFF WRIGHT WRECKS SECOND 'HELL'S HALF ACRE,' AT WALKER'S, OVERLOOKING RIVER, AND NABS TWO OFFENDERS ON WAY BACK HOME

Sheriff George Wright, who has been active in the tripartite city, county and Pennsylvania campaign against the wooded rendezvous of bootleggers near the state line, struck early Sunday morning against a second "Hell's Half Acre," in a raid on a camp located on the old Walker sewer pipe works, overlooking the Ohio river between East Liverpool and Wellsville.

As a result of the visit of the sheriff, who was accompanied by Deputy James Elliott and Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Detective H. K. Leyda, of Wellsville, the camp was wrecked and the habitues warned their supposedly illicit operations would not be permitted.

"Fold your tents and get out," a sleepy-eyed camp attendant was told by Sheriff Wright. "We're coming back again."

A small tent was the only shelter in the camp. There were two folding cots within it. One of these was broken. There was no bed clothing. An old coat served as a pillow for one of the attendants, while another was wrapped in a horse blanket.

When Sheriff Wright drove up to the sign of the camp, which was a white-washed sewer pipe on a path on the southside of the traction line, one of two young men sang out, "hey! that you?"

None of the raiding party answered. The lookout walked west on the traction right of way to the camp entrance. As he was under the influence of liquor, he was arrested. There was nothing on his person. Warned to make no outcry, he was left in the custody of Deputy Elliott.

Down the path, which followed a tortuous course through the thick brush, the raiders traveled. No light were used until the camp site had been reached. The first flash of a light revealed two young men asleep upon the bare ground. Within the tent two other sleepers. Two dirt-smeared planks extending from two 24-inch sewer pipes served as a table. Several gallon glass bottles were on the table and the ground. One contained water and another was partly filled with kerosene.

For more than an hour a search of the camp was made, even the rough river bank being combed. Lines of drain tile had been laid about the camp and these had been whitewashed. Many pieces of tile were pulled away in the search for a liquor cache, but none was found. In a corner of the tent was a chip basket, and his held several hundred metal bottle caps. Nearby was a muslin bag about three-quarters full of corks for half-pint bottles.

The three camp visitors began the long walk to East Liverpool, after complying with order to "pull stakes."

As the raiders were returning to Lisbon, Sheriff Wright and Deputy Elliott arrested Frank McBride, of East Palestine, and C. H. Davis, of East Liverpool, at a point near Spence's Corners, following the discovery of a car parked on the east side of the road headed south, with all lights burning, and two cars parked on the other side of the highway, headed south. Several men were seen on the other side of the highway.

Just as Sheriff Wright stepped from his automobile, there was heard the sound of a bottle dropping on the west embankment of the highway.

Sheriff Wright, investigating, found a half pint bottle of corn liquor.

Davis, who was charged with disorderly conduct and was fined $10 and costs by Justice M. K. Zimerman, of Lisbon. McBride was fined $10 and costs for parking his car on the wrong side of the road.

COUNTY MOTOR CLUB MEETING

Monthly meeting of the Columbiana County Motor club will be held in the office of H. C. Armstrong, Lisbon, this evening.

Legislation effecting the automobile owner, which will likely be considered at the next session of the legislature will be discussed at this meeting. The board is expected to give its approval to an amendment to the extradition law, making it possible to bring persons back to Ohio for trial upon charges of automobile stealing without the red tape now in effect. A driver's identification law, which has been drafted by the Ohio State Automobile association, will also be endorsed.

AUTO WRECKS WOODEN AWNING

SHERIFF WRIGHT WRECKS SECOND 'HELL'S HALF ACRE,' AT WALKER'S, OVERLOOKING RIVER, AND NABS TWO OFFENDERS ON WAY BACK HOME

Sheriff George Wright, who has been active in the tripartite city, county and Pennsylvania campaign against the wooded rendezvous of bootleggers near the state line, struck early Sunday morning against a second "Hell's Half Acre," in a raid on a camp located on the old Walker sewer pipe works, overlooking the Ohio river between East Liverpool and Wellsville.

As a result of the visit of the sheriff, who was accompanied by Deputy James Elliott and Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Detective H. K. Leyda, of Wellsville, the camp was wrecked and the habitues warned their supposedly illicit operations would not be permitted.

"Fold your tents and get out," a sleepy-eyed camp attendant was told by Sheriff Wright. "We're coming back again."

A small tent was the only shelter in the camp. There were two folding cots within it. One of these was broken. There was no bed clothing. An old coat served as a pillow for one of the attendants, while another was wrapped in a horse blanket.

When Sheriff Wright drove up to the sign of the camp, which was a white-washed sewer pipe on a path on the southside of the traction line, one of two young men sang out, "hey! that you?"

None of the raiding party answered. The lookout walked west on the traction right of way to the camp entrance. As he was under the influence of liquor, he was arrested. There was nothing on his person. Warned to make no outcry, he was left in the custody of Deputy Elliott.

Down the path, which followed a tortuous course through the thick brush, the raiders traveled. No light were used until the camp site had been reached. The first flash of a light revealed two young men asleep upon the bare ground. Within the tent two other sleepers. Two dirt-smeared planks extending from two 24-inch sewer pipes served as a table. Several gallon glass bottles were on the table and the ground. One contained water and another was partly filled with kerosene.

For more than an hour a search of the camp was made, even the rough river bank being combed. Lines of drain tile had been laid about the camp and these had been whitewashed. Many pieces of tile were pulled away in the search for a liquor cache, but none was found. In a corner of the tent was a chip basket, and his held several hundred metal bottle caps. Nearby was a muslin bag about three-quarters full of corks for half-pint bottles.

The three camp visiters began the long walk to East Liverpool, after complying with order to "pull stakes."

As the raiders were returning to Lisbon, Sheriff Wright and Deputy Elliott arrested Frank McBride, of East Palestine, and C. H. Davis, of East Liverpool, at a point near Spence's Corners, following the discovery of a car parked on the east side of the road headed south, with all lights burning, and two cars parked on the other side of the highway, headed south. Several men were seen on the other side of the highway.

Just as Sheriff Wright stepped from his automobile, there was heard the sound of a bottle dropping on the west embankment of the highway.

Sheriff Wright, investigating, found a half pint bottle of corn liquor.

Davis, who was charged with disorderly conduct and was fined $10 and costs by Justice M. K. Zimerman, of Lisbon. McBride was fined $10 and costs for parking his car on the wrong side of the road.

Iron From Electricity.
Two Divorces, No More?
For Swivel Chair Experts.
Coming, $25 a Day.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

IN THIS INDUSTRIAL age, an announcement by the engineering foundation that iron may be produced from ore by electricity is ten thousand times more important than any news about art, literature or politics.

Melting ore and making iron with fire may soon be part of the primitive past, if engineers are not mistaken.

Iron produced electrically would be less subject to rust, and that alone would prevent an annual loss of 20,000,000 tons of steel that goes to waste through corrosion.

The Pacific coast is interested in this. No more coal mines or coal hauling necessary in steel plants. That great mountain of iron near Mexico City, or cheap, high grade iron ore, brought through the canal from Cuba, and combined with the abundant, cheap electric power of the coast, would compete advantageously with Pittsburgh and Gary.

Steel men know that their industry is still primitive. They are not as self-satisfied as Britishers at the convention of steel men, who voted to erase from their records a certain proposition, that they might not be made ridiculous. What they erased was a proposition to make steel by the Bessemer process.

Electricity may do for steel production more than was done by that Bessemer process.

Central Press Photos

While a reward of more than $27,000 offered by newspapers of the city and state and local friends spurs on searchers for the slayers of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, the murder is being used to stir the citizens against the laxity and even timidity shown by Canton, Stark county and state officials in dealing with the underworld characters and bootlegging fraternity believed to be behind the killing. Mellett, through his paper, had waged relentless warfare against the vice law violators and lax officials. Mellett was shot down as he closed the doors of his garage after returning home at night with his wife. The photos show the garage, with the one door still unclosed, the Mellett house adjoining it and the Mellett children, left to right, Betty, Louise, Margaret, Gene and Evans.

LAUNCH WAR ON SPEEDERS

15 Arrests are Made by Police Over Week-end.

War on speeders who use Wells avenue and Lisbon street for a race course was launched Sunday by Mayor W. L. Fogo and police when approximately 15 alleged violators were nabbed on traffic charges.

The majority of the arrests were made on charges of speeding, and several on other counts, including running around street cars stopped to discharge and take on passengers.

Two license numbers were turned in after a couple of machines had raced a dead heat down the middle of the street; others were "just speeding."

Authorities today began to call in the alleged offenders and hearings will be held today and tomorrow.

"I expect to fine them," announced Mayor Fogo in commenting on police efforts to stop speeding and reckless driving over the improved road.

The chief executive points out the facts that mill employes who must get on and off cars at Mill street and children going and coming from the mill playground at the bridge are endangered by careless drivers.

As a result of the week-end exhibition of speed it is likely that a 15-mile an hour limit will be established in Wells avenue and Lisbon street.

BARNES QUITS POLICE POST

Resignation is Accepted by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

Listing nine reasons for quitting his job, charging lack of harmony in the police department, "orders from Acting Chief Newton just to arrest certain ones," and that "things are loose and it is no use to bring them in," Patrolman James Barnes, son of the late Mayor J. S. Barnes, last night tendered his resignation to Mayor W. L. Fogo.

The resignation was promptly accepted by the mayor who asserts that Barnes' charges constitute a mis-statement, inasmuch as all police have been ordered to bring in everything and to operate as efficiently as possible.

Barnes has been patrolling a regular beat here since the murder of James Kenney, firemen, who, at the time of his death was acting as a substitute officer.

Barnes had been in the fire station during the administration of his father and had served as special officer on different occasions. He took Kenney's place in the fire station last fall during the Republican primary election and had been employed there until called for police duty this spring.

The letter of resignation follows:

"Mr. Wallace L. Fogo,

"Sir:—

"Please accept my resignation to take effect at once. My reasons are as follows:

"First: On account of the way the case was handled when Brother Kenney was killed; second: When a bootlegger is brought in he is turned loose—the last one was Ben Travers, that one that testified in the Fultz case; third: That things are loose and it is no use to bring them in; fourth: When some are brought in, in many cases they are turned loose with the promise to pay; fifth: That we have orders from Acting Chief Newton to just arrest certain ones; sixth: We have had no police head to work under since Fultz was suspended; seventh: There is no working in harmony with each other; eighth: The public expects service from the police department which they are entitled to, but under the conditions that Acting Chief Newton and the mayor expect you to work, you cannot render it; ninth: There is more gambling and bootlegging in town than ever and it cannot be suppressed under existing conditions.

"J. E. Barnes, Patrolman."

CLAY WORKERS REFUSE CUT

Port Homer Plant Suspends as Employes Walk Out.

Production at the western plant of the American Vitrified Products company, near Port Homer, was shut down Saturday afternoon when workmen at the plant refused a proposal for a wage reduction of 15 cents an hour and a change from a nine to an eight-hour working day.

The old scale was 60 cents an hour for nine hours. The men were asked to accept a 45-cents an hour scale for eight hours.

The Forest City, another plant of the American Vitrified company, has not been in operation.

Robert Russell, Akron, superintendent of the company, made the proposal to the men Saturday, calling for the reduction, which he said, existed in other fields. The employes voted to refuse the offer and left work at the end of the last shift Saturday afternoon.

Kilns now filled are to be burned, loading is to go on, and general repairs are to be made at the plant, but production will cease until a compromise is reached.

NO DATE IS SET FOR HURD CASE

Pending a report from the state civil service commission on the result of their investigation of Wellsville civil service procedure, no date has been determined upon for the hearing of Harry F. Hurd, former patrolman, on charges filed by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

In all probability, local civil service commission representatives announce the hearing will get under way the first of next week.

The trial originally was scheduled to start tonight but was deferred as a result of the visit Friday of representatives of the state civil service commission and the attorney general's office at Columbus who consulted with principals in the police hearing, as well as city officials and members of the civil service commission.

Unless unforseen occurrences develop, it is possible that the hearing will start next Monday night.

LAUNCH WAR ON SPEEDERS

15 Arrests are Made by Police Over Week-end.

War on speeders who use Wells avenue and Lisbon street for a race course was launched Sunday by Mayor W. L. Fogo and police when approximately 15 alleged violators were nabbed on traffic charges.

The majority of the arrests were made on charges of speeding, and several on other counts, including running around street cars stopped to discharge and take on passengers.

Two license numbers were turned in after a couple of machines had raced a dead heat down the middle of the street; others were "just speeding."

Authorities today began to call in the alleged offenders and hearings will be held today and tomorrow.

"I expect to fine them," announced Mayor Fogo in commenting on police efforts to stop speeding and reckless driving over the improved road.

The chief executive points out the facts that mill employes who must get on and off cars at Mill street and children going and coming from the mill playground at the bridge are endangered by careless drivers.

As a result of the week-end exhibition of speed it is likely that a 15-mile an hour limit will be established in Wells avenue and Lisbon street.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

They are wonderful for constipation, sick-headache and indigestion and they physic the system in a mild and gentle manner, no bad after effects.

BARNES QUITS POLICE POST

Resignation is Accepted by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

Listing nine reasons for quitting his job, charging lack of harmony in the police department, "orders from Acting Chief Newton just to arrest certain ones," and that "things are loose and it is no use to bring them in," Patrolman James Barnes, son of the late Mayor J. S. Barnes, last night tendered his resignation to Mayor W. L. Fogo.

The resignation was promptly accepted by the mayor who asserts that Barnes' charges constitute a mis-statement, inasmuch as all police have been ordered to bring in everything and to operate as efficiently as possible.

Barnes has been patrolling a regular beat here since the murder of James Kenney, firemen, who, at the time of his death was acting as a substitute officer.

Barnes had been in the fire station during the administration of his father and had served as special officer on different occasions. He took Kenney's place in the fire station last fall during the Republican primary election and had been employed there until called for police duty this spring.

The letter of resignation follows:

"Mr. Wallace L. Fogo,

"Sir:—

"Please accept my resignation to take effect at once. My reasons are as follows:

"First: On account of the way the case was handled when Brother Kenney was killed; second: When a bootlegger is brought in he is turned loose—the last one was Ben Travers, that one that testified in the Fultz case; third: That things are loose and it is no use to bring them in; fourth: When some are brought in, in many cases they are turned loose with the promise to pay; fifth: That we have orders from Acting Chief Newton to just arrest certain ones; sixth: We have had no police head to work under since Fultz was suspended; seventh: There is no working in harmony with each other; eighth: The public expects service from the police department which they are entitled to, but under the conditions that Acting Chief Newton and the mayor expect you to work, you cannot render it; ninth: There is more gambling and bootlegging in town than ever and it cannot be suppressed under existing conditions.

"J. E. Barnes, Patrolman."

Port Homer Plant Suspends as Employes Walk Out.

Production at the western plant of the American Vitrified Products company, near Port Homer, was shut down Saturday afternoon when workmen at the plant refused a proposal for a wage reduction of 15 cents an hour and a change from a nine to an eight-hour working day.

The old scale was 60 cents an hour for nine hours. The men were asked to accept a 45-cents an hour scale for eight hours.

The Forest City, another plant of the American Vitrified company, has not been in operation.

Robert Russell, Akron, superintendent of the company, made the proposal to the men Saturday, calling for the reduction, which he said, existed in other fields. The employes voted to refuse the offer and left work at the end of the last shift Saturday afternoon.

Kilns now filled are to be burned, loading is to go on, and general repairs are to be made at the plant, but production will cease until a compromise is reached.

NO DATE IS SET FOR HURD CASE

Pending a report from the state civil service commission on the result of their investigation of Wellsville civil service procedure, no date has been determined upon for the hearing of Harry F. Hurd, former patrolman, on charges filed by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

In all probability, local civil service commission representatives announce the hearing will get under way the first of next week.

The trial originally was scheduled to start tonight but was deferred as a result of the visit Friday of representatives of the state civil service commission and the attorney general's office at Columbus who consulted with principals in the police hearing, as well as city officials and members of the civil service commission.

Unless unforseen occurrences develop, it is possible that the hearing will start next Monday night.

They are scheduled for a hearing this evening before Mayor W. L. Fogo.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW PLANT

Weirton Steel Company Begins Work on Strip Mill.

Ground has been broken and contractors are at work laying the foundations for the $5,000,000 strip sheet mill of the Weirton Steel company, another gigantic unit in their $15,000,000 expansion program for 1926 and 1927.

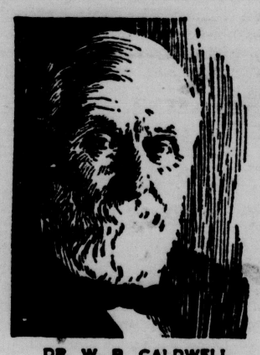

The new plant, which is the seventh of the Weirton Steel company, is to be located between Lee avenue on the south and the strip steel plant on the north, bordered on the east by the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and the Phelps Can company and on the west by East street. It extends across Ferguson avenue, which will be closed at East street.

The construction work will continue until March, 1927, before the plant is ready for operation. After the foundations have been laid hundreds of men will be employed in the structural steel construction. The plant when completed will be more modern in every detail, the buildings to be constructed of steel and brick. When in operation it will afford steady employment to hundreds of laborers and skilled workmen.

As described by C. H. Hunt, chief engineer of the steel company, the new plant will consist of a hot mill with eight stands of horizontal rolls and three edging rolls, served by four continuous furnaces. The entire plant will be motor driven.

The furnaces will be located in a building 80x150 feet with a slab yard adjacent being 100x400 feet long. The hot mills will be at one end of a building 84x1,110 feet with a pickling department parallel. The cold mill building will be 100x500 feet with an annealing room 100x500 feet parallel with it. The shipping department will be parallel with and adjacent to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks in a building 100x500 feet. The receiving power will be generated at the main power station in the steel works where additions to the boiler and power plants are being made.

The completetion of this plant will see the steel company with a strip steel, tin mill, blast furnace, steel mill, coke plant and strip sheet plants. The next plant to be added to the properties will probably be a tube mill, although there has been no official announcement to this effect.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative -Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural regular bowel movement even for these chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

FOUR SEEK PLACE IN STATE SENATE

The fight for the state senatorship from this district, which includes Ohio, Brooke and Hancock counties, looms up as a spirited contest with five men seeking the honor.

Wright Hugus, Wheeling, present incumbent, is opposed for renomination on the Republican ticket by George C. Benke and George M. Miller, both of Wheeling, seek the Democratic nomination at the August 3 primaries.

The senator this term comes from Ohio county by a political agreement that has been in effect for many years. The successful candidate will represent this district with W. S. Wilkin, Wellsburg, who has two more years of a four-year term to serve.

At the next presidential election the senator will be selected from Hancock county. Brooke and Hancock county alternate every four years in sending a man to the higher branch of the state legislature.

Reigns as Beauty Queen in Sicily

The Baroness d'Agala of Catania, descendant of the Spanish monarch who invaded Sicily in the 16th century, is said to be the loveliest of all the present-day Sicilian women. She is well known in the Italian court and in aristocratic circles in London, Paris and on the Riviera.

BROOKE ROADS BEING IMPROVED

The county highway department will improve the highway between Follansbee and Eldersville. The road is getting rough in several places and these holes will be filled with slag and covered with tar. The curves will be widened and where the road passes along a hollow or depression a fence will be erected and painted white so it may easily be seen at night.

White lines will be painted along the highway dividing the road into separate parts and making automobile traffic more safe.

Brooke county is improving its roads this year and Follansbee is getting good roads on all sides. The completion of the Wellsburg-Follansbee road and the continuation of that road through to Wheeling makes it a fine gateway to the Old National road.

CODY FAMILY STUDIES IDEAS FOR 'BUFFALO BILL' MEMORIAL

CLEVELAND. — Immortalization of the memory of the late Colonel William Cody, beloved of the youth of the nation under the guise of "Buffalo Bill" through some fitting memorial is the hope and ambition of the late scout's family, who met in Cleveland for their annual reunion.

Undecided whether the memorial should be in the form of a museum or garage the forty members of the Cody clan selected a committee headed by Mrs. Mary Chester Allen of New York to prepare plans.

Three possible cities have been selected as sites for the memorial. They are Denver, Omaha and Cody, Wyoming.

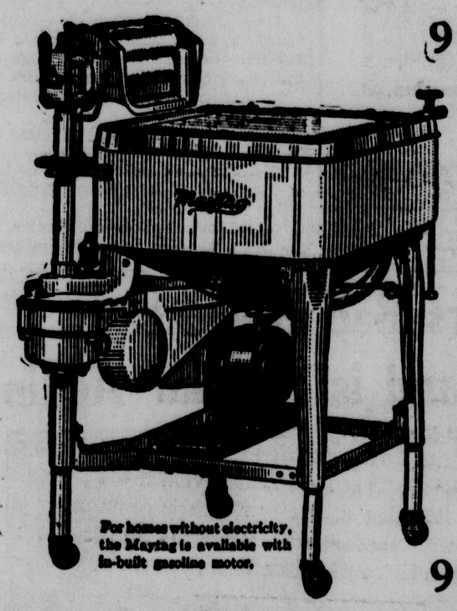

Many interesting sidelights of the character of the late "redskin fighter" were revealed at the reunion by his only surviving near relative, Mrs. Julia Cody Goodman, 83, his sister.

"My brother," and the frail woman's voice swelled with pride, "was a real builder. He was in turn justice of peace and legislator in Nebraska where he settled after teaching Grand Duke Alexis how to shoot buffalo. There he built the Cody canal of 6 miles to his 400 acre farm at North Platte."

Harry B. Cody of Cleveland, was selected president of the clan for 1927; and Luther M. Cody, of Beverly, Mass., was selected to compile a genealogy of the Lad Codies, which was the name of the first Cody to land in this country at the time of the immigration of the Huguenots from France.

The county highway department will improve the highway between Follansbee and Eldersville. The road is getting rough in several places and these holes will be filled with slag and covered with tar. The curves will be widened and where the road passes along a hollow or depression a fence will be erected and painted white so it may easily be seen at night.

White lines will be painted along the highway dividing the road into separate parts and making automobile traffic more safe.

Brooke county is improving its roads this year and Follansbee is getting good roads on all sides. The completion of the Wellsburg-Follansbee road and the continuation of that road through to Wheeling makes it a fine gateway to the Old National road.

CODY FAMILY STUDIES IDEAS FOR 'BUFFALO BILL' MEMORIAL

CLEVELAND. — Immortalization of the memory of the late Colonel William Cody, beloved of the youth of the nation under the guise of "Buffalo Bill" through some fitting memorial is the hope and ambition of the late scout's family, who met in Cleveland for their annual reunion.

Undecided whether the memorial should be in the form of a museum or garage the forty members of the Cody clan selected a committee headed by Mrs. Mary Chester Allen of New York to prepare plans.

Three possible cities have been selected as sites for the memorial. They are Denver, Omaha and Cody, Wyoming.

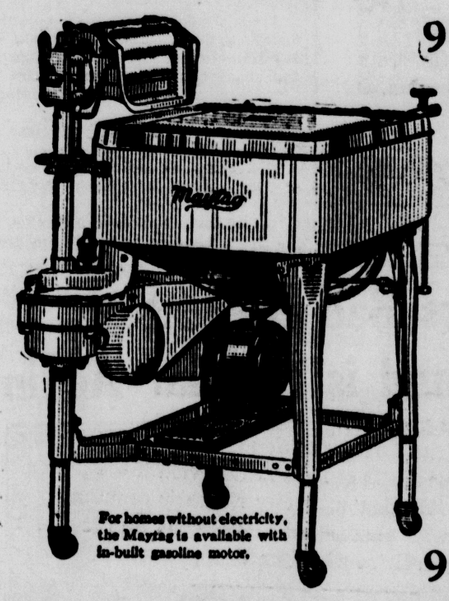

Many interesting sidelights of the character of the late "redskin fighter" were revealed at the reunion by his only surviving near relative, Mrs. Julia Cody Goodman, 83, his sister.

"My brother," and the frail woman's voice swelled with pride, "was a real builder. He was in turn justice of peace and legislator in Nebraska where he settled after teaching Grand Duke Alexis how to shoot buffalo. There he built the Cody canal of 61 miles to his 400 acre farm at North Platte."

Harry B. Cody of Cleveland, was selected president of the clan for 1927; and Luther M. Cody, of Beverly, Mass., was selected to compile a genealogy of the Lad Codies, which was the name of the first Cody to land in this country at the time of the immigration of the Huguenots from France.

GROUND BROKEN FOR NEW PLANT

Weirton Steel Company Begins Work on Strip Mill.

Ground has been broken and contractors are at work laying the foundations for the $5,000,000 strip sheet mill of the Weirton Steel company, another gigantic unit in their $15,000,000 expansion program for 1926 and 1927.

The new plant, which is the seventh of the Weirton Steel company, is to be located between Lee avenue on the south and the strip steel plant on the north, bordered on the east by the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and the Phelps Can company and on the west by East street. It extends across Ferguson avenue, which will be closed at East street.

The construction work will continue until March, 1927, before the plant is ready for operation. After the foundations have been laid hundreds of men will be employed in the structural steel construction. The plant when completed will be more modern in every detail, the buildings to be constructed of steel and brick. When in operation it will afford steady employment to hundreds of laborers and skilled workmen.

As described by C. H. Hunt, chief engineer of the steel company, the new plant will consist of a hot mill with eight stands of horizontal rolls and three edging rolls, served by four continuous furnaces. The entire plant will be motor driven.

The furnaces will be located in a building 80x150 feet with a slab yard adjacent being 100x400 feet long. The hot mills will be at one end of a building 84x1,110 feet with a pickling department parallel. The cold mill building will be 100x500 feet with an annealing room 100x500 feet parallel with it. The shipping department will be parallel with and adjacent to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks in a building 100x500 feet. The receiving power will be generated at the main power station in the steel works where additions to the boiler and power plants are being made.

The completetion of this plant will see the steel company with a strip steel, tin mill, blast furnace, steel mill, coke plant and strip sheet plants. The next plant to be added to the properties will probably be a tube mill, although there has been no official announcement to this effect.

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative -Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural regular bowel movement even for these chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

FOUR SEEK PLACE IN STATE SENATE

The fight for the state senatorship from this district, which includes Ohio, Brooke and Hancock counties, looms up as a spirited contest with five men seeking the honor.

Wright Hugus, Wheeling, present incumbent, is opposed for renomination on the Republican ticket by George C. Benke and George M. Miller, both of Wheeling, seek the Democratic nomination at the August 3 primaries.

The senator this term comes from Ohio county by a political agreement that has been in effect for many years. The successful candidate will represent this district with W. S. Wilkin, Wellsburg, who has two more years of a four-year term to serve.

At the next presidential election the senator will be selected from Hancock county. Brooke and Hancock county alternate every four years in sending a man to the higher branch of the state legislature.

Price on Heads of Assassins

Ohio newspapers, a unit today as they always have been in the war against vice and the demand for law enforcement, and individuals have offered rewards totalling more than $27,000. for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, the crusading publisher of the Canton News, who was shot to death by underworld hirelings.

One thousand dollars of this sum has been posted by the Brush-Moore newspapers, including the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Every nook and corner of gangland in Canton will be combed, as it should be, for the assassins who struck in the dark at a man who, despite repeated warnings from friends and threats from the vice ring, battled for a public cause in the Stark county metropolis.

Don R. Mellett's death is corroborative evidence of the truth of all he said in his campaign against organized bootleggers, dope peddlers and other criminals whom he sought to drive from their lair. And because he had the courage to expose conditions existing in his adopted city he was marked by desperate characters who do not stop at exacting human life in their efforts to accomplish their nefarious purposes.

The fighting editor's assassination is a blot on the name of the city of Canton, but he shall not have died in vain if the law enforcement officers of the Stark county city rid their community of the profiteers of vice who challenge the freedom of the press and wreak vengeance upon those who dare to oppose them.

A Baffled Dictator

Pity Pilsukski, dictator of Poland. Having seized the supreme power, he doesn't know what to do with it. For he is a soldier, not a ruler. All his experience has been military. He is probably too old a bird to learn politics now, and hasn't time for lessons. Things move too fast.

In a world too much given to dictatorships in these latter years, perhaps such an example was needed to make political dictation ridiculous instead of dignified and worshipful. A dictatorship depends on the dictator, more than on any other factor. Here is notice to every would-be Napoleon or Caesar to consider well his own strength and qualifications before indulging in any coup d'etat and making himself personally responsible for his country's government and welfare.

It takes a very exceptional man to be a whole government and generals, anyway, usually make poor civil leaders, lacking the civilian viewpoint.

There is danger in Pilsudski, even in his political weakness. For realizing that his personal strength is military, he seems to be trying to set the Polish stage for another war, in which he might win fresh laurels. That is the eternal way of the soldier. Heaven grant that the people of Poland have enough sense to see that what they need is not wars, but statesmanship.

Seadromes

If the plans of Howard R. Armstrong, chief of the mechanical experimental development division of the E. L. DuPont De Nemours company, of Wilmington, Del., prove workable, the Atlantic ocean, and possibly other oceans, will some day be dotted with great "seadromes."

A seadrome, according to this engineer, will be a 100-acre or more, floating, anchored, landing field upon which planes may stop for repairs or refueling. He believes that such mid-ocean stopping places are necessary if speed and carrying capacity are to be achieved in future airplane development. If long distance is the aim in aviation, the other two features will have to be sacrificed and ocean stopping places will not be needed.

The seadromes he proposes will cover approximately 111 acres, having a displacement of many thousand tons, 97 per cent of which will be below the line of wave disturbance. Hotels, fuel storage tanks, food, machine shops and meteorological bureaus can be located on them. The result will be 30-hour transportation service between Atlantic City, N. J., and Plymouth, England.

These seadromes may be useful, necessary and possible things, in which case they will probably become established facts. Nevertheless, let's not have too many of them, or there won't be any ocean left at all.

From the income tax collections, evidently people are so glad their taxes were reduced that they're paying more just out of gratitude.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awakened early by F. Ziegfeld phoning and he related a gay story almost compensating for stirring me out of sound sleep. And then with A. Keller, the inn keeper, to see his Chinese porcelains, very engaging.

Home and rang up Roy Moulton, the humorist, and a British voice said "He's in the bawth, sir!" and I said "Well get him out of it. This isn't Saturday night," which I thought a middling fair retort. So at my labours and with no little zest.

In the evening with my wife to dine at a roof garden high over the city and it came upon me she was the fairest lady there, among much beauty, too, and I told her so and saw it pleased her mightily. And Theodore, the head waiter, must have thought likewise for he gave her a red rose. So home late.

As rents soar in the Broadway area, stores shrink. There are a half hundred holes in the wall in the Rialto district that prosper despite the amazing tariff. An orange drink stand with four-foot frontage in Times Square pays a yearly rental of $9,000.

Across the way the same firm pays $14,000 a year for a stand that has eight feet on Seventh avenue and 12 feet on 42d street. Out of such stands in crowded centers the company operating them is reported to have garnered millions in the past few years.

Small stores are sliced into cubicles and the building owner's income is almost tripled. A pie-shaped jewelry shop on Seventh avenue that may accommodate only two customers and a salesman is said to pay $50,000 annually in rent.

A shop on 52d street and Fifth avenue, occupying 32 square feet of space, rented some time ago for $65,000 a year. The renter failed and the space was cut into three shops and the rental price went up to $100,000.

For those who sell women's wear, West 42d street is considered the most populous and concentrated market in the world with the greatest buying power. And, of course, rents are enormous. For those who sell popular priced stuff to men, Nassau street is considered best for display. More men pass through Nassau street in a day than anywhere else in the world. Most of them are merely strolling after lunch and are likely to be in a buying mood.

It is not as easy to rent a store or shop in New York as might be imagined. One month's rent in advance is not sufficient. The prospective tenant must convince the building owner he is able to successfully carry on a business. A store that fails gives the building a "black eye" for the next tenant and several failures will surround it with a hoodoo that may prove disastrous. Too, when a store flourishes, the landlord does not feel a hesitancy in boosting rent at expiration of the lease.

The lure of a window display in crowded sections is astonishing. The most concrete evidence of this was in a souvenir shop with one window on Broadway. It was "bricked" late one night. For two days there was no window display. Daily receipts averaged $175 a day. During the two days a new plate glass was being installed the receipts fell below $20 a day. The first day the window display was restored the receipts mounted to the daily average figure.

Without window displays in New York I doubt that few of us would spend money for anything outside of bare necessities.

THE PRUDENT MR. FINNERTY

The lawyer picked his way to the edge of the excavation for the new terminal station and called down for Michael Finnerty.

"Who's wantin' me?"inquired a deep voice.

"I am," said the lawyer. "Mr. Finnerty, did you come from Castlebar, County Mayo?"

"I did."

And was your mother named Mary and your father named Owen?"

"They was."

"Then Mr. Finnerty," said the lawyer, "it is my duty to inform you that your Aunt Kate has died in the old country, leaving you an estate of twenty thousand dollars in cash. Please come on up."

There was a pause and a commotion down below.

"Mr. Finnerty," called the lawyer, craning his neck over the trench, "I'm waiting for you!"

"In wan minute," said Mr Finnerty. "I just stopped to lick the foreman!"

For six months Mr. Finnerty, in a high hat and with patent leather shoes on his feet, lived a life of elegant ease, trying to cure himself of a great thirst. Then he went back to his old job. It was there in the same excavation that the lawyer found him the second time.

"Mr. Finnerty," he said, "I've more news for you. It is your Uncle Terence who's dead now in the old country and he has left you his entire property."

"I don't think I can take it," said Mr. Finnerty, leaning wearily on his pick. "I'm not as strong as I wance was; and I'm doubtin' if I could go through all that again and live!"

U. S. Ship Masters Have No Right to Perform Weddings

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Many couples who have been married on the high seas by the skippers of government vessels may have to have the knot tied all over again just to be safe.

In instructing the masters of all government ships to discontinue the practice of performing marriage ceremonies, the general counsel of the shipping board said: "The master of a merchant vessel of the United States has no authority to perform the marriage ceremony."

The point was cited that there is no national marriage law in the United States, and that the masters of government vessels are in reality mere government employes.

No opinion was expressed as to the validity of the marriages already performed, nor concerning the right of masters of private vessels to perform the ceremonies.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cooperative Fish Culture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Unable to keep pace with the fishermen of the nation in their demand for game fish, especially trout and bass, the United States Bureau of Fisheries has sent out a call for private help in the hatching and raising of young fish to stock the streams of the country. The hatchery stationery of the Bureau are all operating to their limit, and they can not plant the young fingerlings fast enough to keep the streams stocked for the sportsmen. The Bureau is therefore appealing to every fish and game club or private owner of a stream, lake or parts thereof, to get in the fish culture game along with the Government, and help keep the streams stocked.

The Bureau of Fisheries has plenty of fish eggs every year, millions of them in fact, but it has not enough ponds or lakes or other inclosures to raise the young fish to a length at which it is safe to turn them loose. The Bureau experts say it is no use to hatch a million trout and turn them loose the next day or next week, as they will simply be devoured by other fish. If they can be raised to a length of three or four inches they are nimble and strongh enough to take pretty good care of themselves, and many of they will grow up.

The principal requirement for the culture of game fish, especially trout, is fresh water which is under control so that the very young fish can be kept safely. Any small stream can be impounded into a lake, or several lakes or ponds, and some of course are more easily handled than others. The Bureau will furnish the eggs or the very young fish, if somebody who has a stream or lake or pond will furnish the fresh water under proper control, and a little food. The Bureau will also furnish supervision and advice, and when the brood or flock or covey of young fish is raised to fingerling length, the Government will split the lot on a 50-50 basis with the party furnishing the water.

This arrangements means that a fishing club which has been appealing to the government for 10,000 trout a year for its stream, and getting only 500, can have 20,000 if it will impound some suitable water and raise the young which the Government can supply. The government can give the club 40,000 trout just hatched, but it con give only 500 fingerlings. If the club will raise the 40,000 it can keep half of them for its own stream, and the remainder will be planted by the government in near-by waters.

This scheme solves two of the Bureau of Fisheries' problems, the lack of lackes or ponds, and the limited transportation facilities available for the larger fish. If sporting clubs respond in sufficient numbers to this offer of cooperation, the government experts have hopes that the game fish supply of the country may be materially increased, and that better sport may be available for the hordes of fishermen who annually go forth full of hope and too often come home full of disappintment.

Automobiles Reduce Supply.

The automobile has been the greatest modern factor in reducing the reducing the game fish supply of the United States, in the opinion of the Bureau of Fisheries' experts. The once distant streams which were seldom fished, are now brought close to hand for the motorist, and there is scarcely a waterway in the land which is not visited by many fishermen each season. The game laws have been made more strict in many states, and state fish hatcheries have been added to the string of federal stations, and still the supply fails to keep up with the demand. Were it not for the constant work of these hatcheries there would scarcely be a trout left in the country, and the situation of the bass is not much better.

The Government needs help in bass culture even more than in trout culture, because bass can not be treated like trout and caught and stripped of their eggs for hatchery use. The culture of trout, like that of salmon, consists of catching the female in the spawning season, stripping her of her eggs, fertilizing these with the milt of the male trout, and hatching them in troughs of running water. Thus a great output of young trout is possible

The bass does not yield to this sort of treatment, and can only be cultivated by providing natural spawning grounds and protecting them. The black bass provides a nest, usually of fine gravel, for its eggs, which after being deposited by the female and fertilized by the male, are protected by the female fish, which stands over them, washing them gently by the swish of the fins and keeping enemies away. The young bass are also protected for some days, and led to their first feeding grounds before being turned loose in the world.

The propagation of bass therefore calls for carefully impounded waters in which they may spawn and rear the young, and then for segregation of the young from the older fish, or else liberal feeding of the old ones, because, despite all its care for its young the bass is a natural born cannibal, and will eat its own kind if other food fails. Bass are also rather fussy about what they eat, as any fisherman knows who has sought to tempt them with various kinds of bait. Minnows and other small living creatures of the streams are their preference.

One Club's Success

The Bureau of Fisheries has tried out the cooperative fish culture plan with several game clubs and has found it quite practical. One club in Missouri is now getting about 700,000 rainbow trout eggs each year, and with government aid is hatching them and keeping half of the fingerlings for its own streams, the remainder being distributed by the government. Not all of the fingerlings mature, but enough of them do so to improve materially the fishing in those parts.

Each proposed new breeding ground for game fish offers its own problems, and the government's experts are willing to investigate all offers of cooperation as rapidly as possible and to enter into agreements for co-operative culture wherever practical. Game clubs which are always asking Congress for more money for the Bureau of Fisheries work thus have an opportunity to increase the output of game fish by their own efforts, even if congress insists on keeping a limit on federal expenditures for this purpose. Thus the sportsmen of the land need not depend upon President Coolidge's recently much exploited interest in fishing as the only source for more government help in getting more game fish planted in our streams.

Ponds or lakes from one acre in extent upwards are probable spots for fish culture, and most streams at some place along their courses offer opportunities for the creation of artificial ponds at very list cost. The larger the impounded water, the more natural food it will offer for fish, and the less care will be involved in that respect. Larger ponds of 15 to 25 acres offer opportunities for more varied effort, and it is possible to raise various sorts of bass, carp, bream and other game fish in them. A 10-acre pond is considered adequate to raise 100,000 young bass in a season, and trout require less area. With the possibilities of cooperative culture in mind, the Government experts are optimistic about the future of game fish in this country, despite the rapid increase in fishing throughout the length and breadth of the land.

Price on Heads of Assassins

Ohio newspapers, a unit today as they always have been in the war against vice and the demand for law enforcement, and individuals have offered rewards totalling more than $27,000. for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, the crusading publisher of the Canton News, who was shot to death by underworld hirelings.

One thousand dollars of this sum has been posted by the Brush-Moore newspapers, including the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Every nook and corner of gangland in Canton will be combed, as it should be, for the assassins who struck in the dark at a man who, despite repeated warnings from friends and threats from the vice ring, battled for a public cause in the Stark county metropolis.

Don R. Mellett's death is corroborative evidence of the truth of all he said in his campaign against organized bootleggers, dope peddlers and other criminals whom he sought to drive from their lair. And because he had the courage to expose conditions existing in his adopted city he was marked by desperate characters who do not stop at exacting human life in their efforts to accomplish their nefarious purposes.

The fighting editor's assassination is a blot on the name of the city of Canton, but he shall not have died in vain if the law enforcement officers of the Stark county city rid their community of the profiteers of vice who challenge the freedom of the press and wreak vengeance upon those who dare to oppose them.

A Baffled Dictator

Pity Pilsukski, dictator of Poland. Having seized the supreme power, he doesn't know what to do with it. For he is a soldier, not a ruler. All his experience has been military. He is probably too old a bird to learn politics now, and hasn't time for lessons. Things move too fast.

In a world too much given to dictatorships in these latter years, perhaps such an example was needed to make political dictation ridiculous instead of dignified and worshipful. A dictatorship depends on the dictator, more than on any other factor. Here is notice to every would-be Napoleon or Caesar to consider well his own strength and qualifications before indulging in any coup d'etat and making himself personally responsible for his country's government and welfare.

It takes a very exceptional man to be a whole government and generals, anyway, usually make poor civil leaders, lacking the civilian viewpoint.

There is danger in Pilsudski, even in his political weakness. For realizing that his personal strength is military, he seems to be trying to set the Polish stage for another war, in which he might win fresh laurels. That is the eternal way of the soldier. Heaven grant that the people of Poland have enough sense to see that what they need is not wars, but statesmanship.

Seadromes

If the plans of Howard R. Armstrong, chief of the mechanical experimental development division of the E. L. DuPont De Nemours company, of Wilmington, Del., prove workable, the Atlantic ocean, and possibly other oceans, will some day be dotted with great "seadromes."

A seadrome, according to this engineer, will be a 100-acre or more, floating, anchored, landing field upon which planes may stop for repairs or refueling. He believes that such mid-ocean stopping places are necessary if speed and carrying capacity are to be achieved in future airplane development. If long distance is the aim in aviation, the other two features will have to be sacrificed and ocean stopping places will not be needed.

The seadromes he proposes will cover approximately 111 acres, having a displacement of many thousand tons, 97 per cent of which will be below the line of wave disturbance. Hotels, fuel storage tanks, food, machine shops and meteorological bureaus can be located on them. The result will be 30-hour transportation service between Atlantic City, N. J., and Plymouth, England.

These seadromes may be useful, necessary and possible things, in which case they will probably become established facts. Nevertheless, let's not have too many of them, or there won't be any ocean left at all.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awakened early by F. Ziegfeld phoning and he related a gay story almost compensating for stirring me out of sound sleep. And then with A. Keller, the inn keeper, to see his Chinese porcelains, very engaging.

Home and rang up Roy Moulton, the humorist, and a British voice said "He's in the bawth, sir!" and I said "Well get him out of it. This isn't Saturday night," which I thought a middling fair retort. So at my labours and with no little zest.

In the evening with my wife to dine at a roof garden high over the city and it came upon me she was the fairest lady there, among much beauty, too, and I told her so and saw it pleased her mightily. And Theodore, the head waiter, must have thought likewise for he gave her a red rose. So home late.

As rents soar in the Broadway area, stores shrink. There are a half hundred holes in the wall in the Rialto district that prosper despite the amazing tariff. An orange drink stand with four-foot frontage in Times Square pays a yearly rental of $9,000.

Across the way the same firm pays $14,000 a year for a stand that has eight feet on Seventh avenue and 12 feet on 42d street. Out of such stands in crowded centers the company operating them is reported to have garnered millions in the past few years.

Small stores are sliced into cubicles and the building owner's income is almost tripled. A pie-shaped jewelry shop on Seventh avenue that may accommodate only two customers and a salesman is said to pay $50,000 annually in rent.

A shop on 52d street and Fifth avenue, occupying 32 square feet of space, rented some time ago for $65,000 a year. The renter failed and the space was cut into three shops and the rental price went up to $100,000.

For those who sell women's wear, West 42d street is considered the most populous and concentrated market in the world with the greatest buying power. And, of course, rents are enormous. For those who sell popular priced stuff to men, Nassau street is considered best for display. More men pass through Nassau street in a day than anywhere else in the world. Most of them are merely strolling after lunch and are likely to be in a buying mood.

It is not as easy to rent a store or shop in New York as might be imagined. One month's rent in advance is not sufficient. The prospective tenant must convince the building owner he is able to successfully carry on a business. A store that fails gives the building a "black eye" for the next tenant and several failures will surround it with a hoodoo that may prove disastrous. Too, when a store flourishes, the landlord does not feel a hesitancy in boosting rent at expiration of the lease.

The lure of a window display in crowded sections is astonishing. The most concrete evidence of this was in a souvenir shop with one window on Broadway. It was "bricked" late one night. For two days there was no window display. Daily receipts averaged $175 a day. During the two days a new plate glass was being installed the receipts fell below $20 a day. The first day the window display was restored the receipts mounted to the daily average figure.

Without window displays in New York I doubt that few of us would spend money for anything outside of bare necessities.

THE PRUDENT MR. FINNERTY

The lawyer picked his way to the edge of the excavation for the new terminal station and called down for Michael Finnerty.

"Who's wantin' me?" inquired a deep voice.

"I am," said the lawyer. "Mr. Finnerty, did you come from Castlebar, County Mayo?"

"I did."

And was your mother named Mary and your father named Owen?"

"They was."

"Then Mr. Finnerty," said the lawyer, "it is my duty to inform you that your Aunt Kate has died in the old country, leaving you an estate of twenty thousand dollars in cash. Please come on up."

There was a pause and a commotion down below.

"Mr. Finnerty," called the lawyer, craning his neck over the trench, "I'm waiting for you!"

"In wan minute," said Mr Finnerty. "I just stopped to lick the foreman!"

For six months Mr. Finnerty, in a high hat and with patent leather shoes on his feet, lived a life of elegant ease, trying to cure himself of a great thirst. Then he went back to his old job. It was there in the same excavation that the lawyer found him the second time.

"Mr. Finnerty," he said, "I've more news for you. It is your Uncle Terence who's dead now in the old country and he has left you his entire property."

"I don't think I can take it," said Mr. Finnerty, leaning wearily on his pick. "I'm not as strong as I wance was; and I'm doubtin' if I could go through all that again and live!"

U. S. Ship Masters Have No Right to Perform Weddings

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Many couples who have been married on the high seas by the skippers of government vessels may have to have the knot tied all over again just to be safe.

In instructing the masters of all government ships to discontinue the practice of performing marriage ceremonies, the general counsel of the shipping board said: "The master of a merchant vessel of the United States has no authority to perform the marriage ceremony."

The point was cited that there is no national marriage law in the United States, and that the masters of government vessels are in reality mere government employes.

No opinion was expressed as to the validity of the marriages already performed, nor concerning the right of masters of private vessels to perform the ceremonies.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cooperative Fish Culture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Unable to keep pace with the fishermen of the nation in their demand for game fish, especially trout and bass, the United States Bureau of Fisheries has sent out a call for private help in the hatching and raising of young fish to stock the streams of the country. The hatchery stationery of the Bureau are all operating to their limit, and they can not plant the young fingerlings fast enough to keep the streams stocked for the sportsmen. The Bureau is therefore appealing to every fish and game club or private owner of a stream, lake or parts thereof, to get in the fish culture game along with the Government, and help keep the streams stocked.

The Bureau of Fisheries has plenty of fish eggs every year, millions of them in fact, but it has not enough ponds or lakes or other inclosures to raise the young fish to a length at which it is safe to turn them loose. The Bureau experts say it is no use to hatch a million trout and turn them loose the next day or next week, as they will simply be devoured by other fish. If they can be raised to a length of three or four inches they are nimble and strongh enough to take pretty good care of themselves, and many of they will grow up.

The principal requirement for the culture of game fish, especially trout, is fresh water which is under control so that the very young fish can be kept safely. Any small stream can be impounded into a lake, or several lakes or ponds, and some of course are more easily handled than others. The Bureau will furnish the eggs or the very young fish, if somebody who has a stream or lake or pond will furnish the fresh water under proper control, and a little food. The Bureau will also furnish supervision and advice, and when the brood or flock or covey of young fish is raised to fingerling length, the Government will split the lot on a 50-50 basis with the party furnishing the water.

This arrangements means that a fishing club which has been appealing to the government for 10,000 trout a year for its stream, and getting only 500, can have 20,000 if it will impound some suitable water and raise the young which the Government can supply. The government can give the club 40,000 trout just hatched, but it can give only 500 fingerlings. If the club will raise the 40,000 it can keep half of them for its own stream, and the remainder will be planted by the government in near-by waters.

This scheme solves two of the Bureau of Fisheries' problems, the lack of lackes or ponds, and the limited transportation facilities available for the larger fish. If sporting clubs respond in sufficient numbers to this offer of cooperation, the government experts have hopes that the game fish supply of the country may be materially increased, and that better sport may be available for the hordes of fishermen who annually go forth full of hope and too often come home full of disappintment.

Automobiles Reduce Supply.

One Club's Success

The Bureau of Fisheries has tried out the cooperative fish culture plan with several game clubs and has found it quite practical. One club in Missouri is now getting about 700,000 rainbow trout eggs each year, and with government aid is hatching them and keeping half of the fingerlings for its own streams, the remainder being distributed by the government. Not all of the fingerlings mature, but enough of them do so to improve materially the fishing in those parts.

Each proposed new breeding ground for game fish offers its own problems, and the government's experts are willing to investigate all offers of cooperation as rapidly as possible and to enter into agreements for co-operative culture wherever practical. Game clubs which are always asking Congress for more money for the Bureau of Fisheries work thus have an opportunity to increase the output of game fish by their own efforts, even if congress insists on keeping a limit on federal expenditures for this purpose. Thus the sportsmen of the land need not depend upon President Coolidge's recently much exploited interest in fishing as the only source for more government help in getting more game fish planted in our streams.

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awakened early by F. Ziegfeld phoning and he related a gay story almost compensating for stirring me out of sound sleep. And then with A. Keller, the inn keeper, to see his Chinese porcelains, very engaging.

Home and rang up Roy Moulton, the humorist, and a British voice said "He's in the bawth, sir!" and I said "Well get him out of it. This isn't Saturday night," which I thought a middling fair retort. So at my labours and with no little zest.

In the evening with my wife to dine at a roof garden high over the city and it came upon me she was the fairest lady there, among much beauty, too, and I told her so and saw it pleased her mightily. And Theodore, the head waiter, must have thought likewise for he gave her a red rose. So home late.

As rents soar in the Broadway area, stores shrink. There are a half hundred holes in the wall in the Rialto district that prosper despite the amazing tariff. An orange drink stand with four-foot frontage in Times Square pays a yearly rental of $9,000.

Across the way the same firm pays $14,000 a year for a stand that has eight feet on Seventh avenue and 12 feet on 42d street. Out of such stands in crowded centers the company operating them is reported to have garnered millions in the past few years.

Small stores are sliced into cubicles and the building owner's income is almost tripled. A pie-shaped jewelry shop on Seventh avenue that may accommodate only two customers and a salesman is said to pay $50,000 annually in rent.

A shop on 52d street and Fifth avenue, occupying 32 square feet of space, rented some time ago for $65,000 a year. The renter failed and the space was cut into three shops and the rental price went up to $100,000.

For those who sell women's wear, West 42d street is considered the most populous and concentrated market in the world with the greatest buying power. And, of course, rents are enormous. For those who sell popular priced stuff to men, Nassau street is considered best for display. More men pass through Nassau street in a day than anywhere else in the world. Most of them are merely strolling after lunch and are likely to be in a buying mood.

It is not as easy to rent a store or shop in New York as might be imagined. One month's rent in advance is not sufficient. The prospective tenant must convince the building owner he is able to successfully carry on a business. A store that fails gives the building a "black eye" for the next tenant and several failures will surround it with a hoodoo that may prove disastrous. Too, when a store flourishes, the landlord does not feel a hesitancy in boosting rent at expiration of the lease.

The lure of a window display in crowded sections is astonishing. The most concrete evidence of this was in a souvenir shop with one window on Broadway. It was "bricked" late one night. For two days there was no window display. Daily receipts averaged $175 a day. During the two days a new plate glass was being installed the receipts fell below $20 a day. The first day the window display was restored the receipts mounted to the daily average figure.

Without window displays in New York I doubt that few of us would spend money for anything outside of bare necessities.

THE PRUDENT MR. FINNERTY

The lawyer picked his way to the edge of the excavation for the new terminal station and called down for Michael Finnerty.

"Who's wantin' me?"inquired a deep voice.

"I am," said the lawyer. "Mr. Finnerty, did you come from Castlebar, County Mayo?"

"I did."

And was your mother named Mary and your father named Owen?"

"They was."

"Then Mr. Finnerty," said the lawyer, "it is my duty to inform you that your Aunt Kate has died in the old country, leaving you an estate of twenty thousand dollars in cash. Please come on up."

There was a pause and a commotion down below.

"Mr. Finnerty," called the lawyer, craning his neck over the trench, "I'm waiting for you!"

"In wan minute," said Mr Finnerty. "I just stopped to lick the foreman!"

For six months Mr. Finnerty, in a high hat and with patent leather shoes on his feet, lived a life of elegant ease, trying to cure himself of a great thirst. Then he went back to his old job. It was there in the same excavation that the lawyer found him the second time.

"Mr. Finnerty," he said, "I've more news for you. It is your Uncle Terence who's dead now in the old country and he has left you his entire property."

"I don't think I can take it," said Mr. Finnerty, leaning wearily on his pick. I'm not as strong as I wance was; and I'm doubtin' if I could go through all that again and live!"

U. S. Ship Masters Have No Right to Perform Weddings

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Many couples who have been married on the high seas by the skippers of government vessels may have to have the knot tied all over again just to be safe.

In instructing the masters of all government ships to discontinue the practice of performing marriage ceremonies, the general counsel of the shipping board said: "The master of a merchant vessel of the United States has no authority to perform the marriage ceremony."

The point was cited that there is no national marriage law in the United States, and that the masters of government vessels are in reality mere government employes.

No opinion was expressed as to the validity of the marriages already performed, nor concerning the right of masters of private vessels to perform the ceremonies.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cooperative Fish Culture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Unable to keep pace with the fishermen of the nation in their demand for game fish, especially trout and bass, the United States Bureau of Fisheries has sent out a call for private help in the hatching and raising of young fish to stock the streams of the country. The hatchery stationery of the Bureau are all operating to their limit, and they can not plant the young fingerlings fast enough to keep the streams stocked for the sportsmen. The Bureau is therefore appealing to every fish and game club or private owner of a stream, lake or parts thereof, to get in the fish culture game along with the Government, and help keep the streams stocked.

The Bureau of Fisheries has plenty of fish eggs every year, millions of them in fact, but it has not enough ponds or lakes or other inclosures to raise the young fish to a length at which it is safe to turn them loose. The Bureau experts say it is no use to hatch a million trout and turn them loose the next day or next week, as they will simply be devoured by other fish. If they can be raised to a length of three or four inches they are nimble and strongh enough to take pretty good care of themselves, and many of they will grow up.

The principal requirement for the culture of game fish, especially trout, is fresh water which is under control so that the very young fish can be kept safely. Any small stream can be impounded into a lake, or several lakes or ponds, and some of course are more easily handled than others. The Bureau will furnish the eggs or the very young fish, if somebody who has a stream or lake or pond will furnish the fresh water under proper control, and a little food. The Bureau will also furnish supervision and advice, and when the brood or flock or covey of young fish is raised to fingerling length, the Government will split the lot on a 50-50 basis with the party furnishing the water.

This arrangements means that a fishing club which has been appealing to the government for 10,000 trout a year for its stream, and getting only 500, can have 20,000 if it will impound some suitable water and raise the young which the Government can supply. The government can give the club 40,000 trout just hatched, but it con give only 500 fingerlings. If the club will raise the 40,000 it can keep half of them for its own stream, and the remainder will be planted by the government in near-by waters.

This scheme solves two of the Bureau of Fisheries' problems, the lack of lackes or ponds, and the limited transportation facilities available for the larger fish. If sporting clubs respond in sufficient numbers to this offer of cooperation, the government experts have hopes that the game fish supply of the country may be materially increased, and that better sport may be available for the hordes of fishermen who annually go forth full of hope and too often come home full of disappintment.

Automobiles Reduce Supply.

The automobile has been the greatest modern factor in reducing the reducing the game fish supply of the United States, in the opinion of the Bureau of Fisheries' experts. The once distant streams which were seldom fished, are now brought close to hand for the motorist, and there is scarcely a waterway in the land which is not visited by many fishermen each season. The game laws have been made more strict in many states, and state fish hatcheries have been added to the string of federal stations, and still the supply fails to keep up with the demand. Were it not for the constant work of these hatcheries there would scarcely be a trout left in the country, and the situation of the bass is not much better.

The Government needs help in bass culture even more than in trout culture, because bass can not be treated like trout and caught and stripped of their eggs for hatchery use. The culture of trout, like that of salmon, consists of catching the female in the spawning season, stripping her of her eggs, fertilizing these with the milt of the male trout, and hatching them in troughs of running water. Thus a great output of young trout is possible

The bass does not yield to this sort of treatment, and can only be cultivated by providing natural spawning grounds and protecting them. The black bass provides a nest, usually of fine gravel, for its eggs, which after being deposited by the female and fertilized by the male, are protected by the female fish, which stands over them, washing them gently by the swish of the fins and keeping enemies away. The young bass are also protected for some days, and led to their first feeding grounds before being turned loose in the world.

The propagation of bass therefore calls for carefully impounded waters in which they may spawn and rear the young, and then for segregation of the young from the older fish, or else liberal feeding of the old ones, because, despite all its care for its young the bass is a natural born cannibal, and will eat its own kind if other food fails. Bass are also rather fussy about what they eat, as any fisherman knows who has sought to tempt them with various kinds of bait. Minnows and other small living creatures of the streams are their preference.

One Club's Success

The Bureau of Fisheries has tried out the cooperative fish culture plan with several game clubs and has found it quite practical. One club in Missouri is now getting about 700,000 rainbow trout eggs each year, and with government aid is hatching them and keeping half of the fingerlings for its own streams, the remainder being distributed by the government. Not all of the fingerlings mature, but enough of them do so to improve materially the fishing in those parts.

Each proposed new breeding ground for game fish offers its own problems, and the government's experts are willing to investigate all offers of cooperation as rapidly as possible and to enter into agreements for co-operative culture wherever practical. Game clubs which are always asking Congress for more money for the Bureau of Fisheries work thus have an opportunity to increase the output of game fish by their own efferos, even if congress insists on keeping a limit on federal expenditures for this purpose. Thus the sportsmen of the land need not depend upon President Coolidge's recently much exploited interest in fishing as the only source for more government help in getting more game fish planted in our streams.

Ponds or lakes from one acre in extent upwards are probable spots for fish culture, and most streams at some place along their courses offer opportunities for the creation of artificial ponds at very list cost. The larger the impounded water, the more natural food it will offer for fish, and the less care will be involved in that respect. Larger ponds of 15 to 25 acres offer opportunities for more varied effort, and it is possible to raise various sorts of bass, carp, bream and other game fish in them. A 10-acre pond is considered adequate to raise 100,000 young bass in a season, and trout require less area. With the possibilities of cooperative culture in mind, the Government experts are optimistic about the future of game fish in this country, despite the rapid increase in fishing throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. Leona Standley, Waterloo street, grandmother of the child, who was seated on the front porch of the Longnecker home, and Mrs. Floyd Liske, Lincoln, Ill., an aunt. Both claim that Crawford, who was enroute to a gas filling station, was traveling at a rapid rate of speed. Crawford said that the youngster stepped directly from behind another machine parked beside the road in front of his automobile. He was accompanied by hiz wife at the time of the accident.

Leetonia Accident.

The Leetonia accident occurred as the four motorists were on their way home after attending a dance in Lisbon. The car, said to have been traveling rapidly, sideswiped the automobile which was in charge of Cecil Jordan, of Columbiana, who was returning from Greenville, Pa., where he is employed. A woman accompanied Jordan.

The Marks car left the road, hurtled an open drain, vaulted to the top of an embankment, jumped 30 feet, took a nose dive and overturned three times before it came to a stop in a corn field on the Edward Jack farm.

Pinned Under Wreckage.

Candle was pinned under the wreckage, but his companions were thrown from the car before it turned turtle.

Jordan stopped his car and he and his companion walked back to render first aid.

The Jack family was awakened and the injured cared for in their home by Dr. Paul H. Beaver, of Leetonia, and later were removed to the Cetral clinic at Salem.

The wrecked car was pulled from the corn field early Sunday morning and taken to East Palestine.

YEGGS ABANDON STOLEN COACH

Dynamite and Burglar Tools Found in Car on Road.

County authorities are seeking the owner of a late model Chevrolet coach, wrecked along the Lincoln highway, north of West Point, at an early hour this morning after it is believed to have been stolen by a band of yeggs.

Underneath the cushion of the rear seat were found several sticks of dynamite, caps, fuses, soap and burglar tools. The license plates had been removed and the motor and serial numbers of the car so battered they could not be read.

According to Sheriff George Wright, who made an investigation, the car was abondoned about 3 o'clock this morning, after it overturned in a ditch alongside the road about midway between West Point and Gilmore's stop on the Y. & O. The machine is believed to have been headed for East Liverpool at the time of the accident.

Blood was spattered over a flashlight and other tools.

The car was painted green with a thin line around the body.

Upon orders from the sheriff, the coach was taken to the Crubaugh garage in Lisbon.

County authorities are not inclined to believe that the abandoned car had any connection with the slayers of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, who was shot by gunmen last Thursday night.

Hint "Pay Dirt"

the man who actually committed the murder who knew that it was to be done and who probably knows who did it. This was not the deed of an individual working alone. It probbaly had been talked over. That others had information about it was proved by the telephone warning Mellett received that he would be killed. The person who sent that message knows who killed Mellett and our job now is to locate him and get him to talk."

"I have received a number of tips and leads. Just what they are worth remains to be seen. They may play out as some of the others have done, but on the other hand any one of them may lead to something that will be direct."

Petition Goes to Donahey.

With the meeting of the inter-city council of all the civic clubs of Canton today it was expected that a committee of 100 of the leading business men will be named to work with the county officials and possibly with state and federal officials in prosecuting the search for the slayers of 36-year-old publisher of the Canton News, and in cleaning up the city.

No definite plans have been formulated but it was generally believed that a shake-up in the Canton police department, possibly resulting in the suspension, resignation or dismissal of Chief of Police S. A. Lengel, was imminent.

A petition directed to Governor Vic Donahey and signed by approximately 5,000 church-goers, asking the governor to use every power within the grasp of his office to investigate conditions here and conduct a clean-up of the city was to be forwarded to Columbus today.

Other Detectives on Job.

In the meantime, Detective Slater, placed in command of all the probes of the Mellett case, was conferring with city officials and following up several new clues.

Slater, who was brought here by a group of Ohio newspapers is now working for the county of Stark. At a conference Sunday it was decided that it would be a better policy to have Slater directly in the employ of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

The Canton News has employed H. J. Burton, another famous detective, who will cooperate with Slater. In addition, C. H. Sisson, Governor Donahey's special investigator, is said to be here, working independently on the case.

Chief of Police Lengel said today he had questioned closely a number of underworld characters but had been unable to unearth a single tangible clew. He criticized Safety Director Earl Hexamer for not co-operating with the police department.

"I haven't seen Hexamer for two days," Lengel said. "I am going to learn today why I am being passed up in connection with the Mellett probe developments."

Pastor is Threatened.

It developed today that Rev. W. H. Longworth, pastor of the First Congregational church, who some time ago made a fight for a clean-up of the underworld here, had also received death threats.

Longworth kept up his fight for some time but finally gave up because he was fighting alone and failed to receive support from the so-called "better element" of the city.

In his sermon yesterday Rev. Mr. Longworth declared, "Mellett might still be the publisher of the News if the men and women of Canton who know and love the right had come to his aid in the name of common decency and upheld his strong right arm."

The pastors of the city churches made the Mellett murder the subject of their sermons Sunday. They appealed to their congregations for an awakening to the real situation and to action looking for an improvement in the future.

PUEBLO, Colo., July 19.—Lester Pilkington, formerly of Tulsa, Okla., shot and killed his bride of a few weeks, formerly Miss Mary Smith, of Pawhuska, Okla., and then committed suicide here today. The woman's refusal to give Pilkington their marriage certificate caused the shooting, police said.

PITTSBURGH, July 19. — George Psialias, alias "George the Greek," notorious western Pennsylvania underworld character, wanted for questioning in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, today was taken into custody by police here.

Psialias, according to police, admitted he was in the vicinity of Canton the night of the shooting but denied any knowledge of the crime, other than information obtained through reading the newspapers.

He told police that on the night Mellett was killed he stayed in Warren, O., about 35 miles from Canton.

power, will be as nearly danger proof as is possible now.

With one of the three engines "dead," the plane can continue its journey. If two engines stop, which would happen rarely, the pilot could still travel 20 to 30 miles, depending on his altitude, in search of a safe landing place.

Each plane will carry eight swivel chairs for passengers, and the new Ford plane should make an ideal carrier for about eight of our swivel chair airplane authorities that have held back aviation in this country.

J. L. Garvin, in the London Observer, says Henry Ford killed the Karl Marx theories when he established five dollars a day as a minimum wage. Marx built up his theories from deep looks in the British museum. Ford built his plan in a factory, studying men.

Five dollars a day that you really get, or six dollars, the present Ford minimum, is better than any theory telling how to get the $5 or $6 a day by and by.

But no real problem is solved by a $6 wage. That is only one step toward decent living, and $6 is far from enough.

IT SOUNDS like anarchy, bolshevism and blasphemy to say it, but as general American prosperity has increased, since wages were raised from $1 to $5, so it would improve in proportion if they were raised, as they will be in time, from $5 to $25 a day.

Years hense $125 for a five-day week will not seem strange.

But wages do not settle everything. Men want the incentive of being in business for themselves, the excitement of making more when they do better work. They want freedom from monotony, and they want variety in occupation.

SEVEN DIE AS STORM SWEEPS NEW ENGLAND

Property Toll is Estimated to be $1,000,000.

TERRIFIC WIND

Lightning Causes Havoc in Towns of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, July 19.—Emerging from one of the worst storms in recent years, New England began a checkup today of the havoc wrought by lightning and a 100-mile an hour wind that killed seven persons and took a property toll of approximately $1,000,000.

Lightning bolts claimed four lives.

Two persons were drowned, and one was crushed to death by a falling tree.

Springfield, Mass., was hard hit, damage there alone totaling nearly $500,000.

An awe-inspiring electrical display accompanied the cyclonic winds.

Hailstones fell, trees were uprooted and traffic and communication was disrupted temporarily.

Marie A. Dubois, 19, of Adams, Mass., was killed when she touched the hand of her brother, Alfred, who had been felled by a lightning bolt, and who, strangely enough, was not seriously hurt.

One Dead in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, July 19.—One dead and one seriously injured was the toll today of a series of storms that struck several sections of Ohio Sunday afternoon and evening, in several places leaving losses from winds and heavy rainfall.

Dr. Harvey C. Highman, 31, local dentist, was crushed to death and a fellow camper, Ernest G. Davis, 30, suffered a broken leg when caught by a falling tree as they fled from their camp near Delaware, Ohio. Mrs. Highman and Mrs. Davis escaped, having reached an open clearing. All had been bathing in the Oletangy river. Mrs. Highman ran two miles through the storm to procure aid. Dr. Highman was a native of Woodsfield, Ohio.

Heavy wind caused slight damage to crops in the rural districts near Marietta, Ohio, while a heavy rainfall and severe lightning swept Newark and vicinity according to the weather bureau here.

ZANESVILLE, July 19.—Hail stones as large as walnuts crashed through the tops of automobiles and broke windshields during yesterday afternoon's terrific hail, rain and wind storm. Numerous trees in the city were uprooted, telephone poles were snapped in two, and gardeners suffered thousands of damages from ruined crops. Thousands of acres of sweet corn were shredded by the fail.

In Morgan county, farther down the Muskingum valley, the wind was even stronger, blowing the roof off the baseball grandstand and injuring several people but none seriously. A score or more of silos on Morgan county farms in the vicinity of McConnellsville and Stockport were demolished.

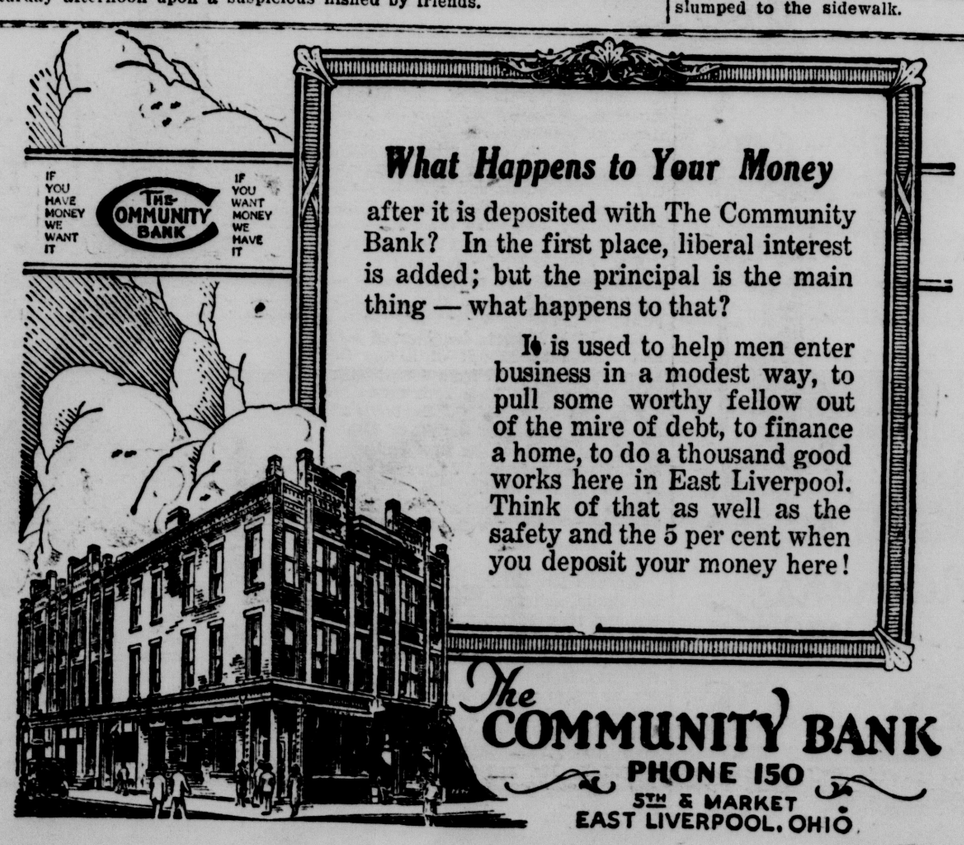

Ride Plane in Storm.

MARIETTA, July 19.—Tales of a thrilling ride aboard a Douglas type of government transport airplane which was caught in a gigantic air pocket between two severe storms and wrecked in a spectacular landing in a cornfield, were told today by seven soldiers under Lieutenant Clifford C. Nutt of New York, who reached Beverley, Ohio, after a night of hardships.

local postoffice, and brought to the hospital. She was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. Leona Standley, Waterloo street, grandmother of the child, who was seated on the front porch of the Longnecker home, and Mrs. Floyd Liske, Lincoln, Ill., an aunt. Both claim that Crawford, who was enroute to a gas filling station, was traveling at a rapid rate of speed. Crawford said that the youngster stepped directly from behind another machine parked beside the road in front of his automobile. He was accompanied by his wife at the time of the accident.

Leetonia Accident.

The Leetonia accident occurred as the four motorists were on their way home after attending a dance in Lisbon. The car, said to have been traveling rapidly, sideswiped the automobile which was in charge of Cecil Jordan, of Columbiana, who was returning from Greenville, Pa., where he is employed. A woman accompanied Jordan.

The Marks car left the road, hurtled an open drain, vaulted to the top of an embankment, jumped 30 feet, took a nose dive and overturned three times before it came to a stop in a corn field on the Edward Jack farm.

Pinned Under Wreckage.

Candle was pinned under the wreckage, but his companions were thrown from the car before it turned turtle.

Jordan stopped his car and he and his companion walked back to render first aid.

The wrecked car was pulled from the corn field early Sunday morning and taken to East Palestine.

YEGGS ABANDON STOLEN COACH

Dynamite and Burglar Tools Found in Car on Road.

County authorities are seeking the owner of a late model Chevrolet coach, wrecked along the Lincoln highway, north of West Point, at an early hour this morning after it is believed to have been stolen by a band of yeggs.

Underneath the cushion of the rear seat were found several sticks of dynamite, caps, fuses, soap and burglar tools. The license plates had been removed and the motor and serial numbers of the car so battered they could not be read.

According to Sheriff George Wright, who made an investigation, the car was abondoned about 3 o'clock this morning, after it overturned in a ditch alongside the road about midway between West Point and Gilmore's stop on the Y. & O. The machine is believed to have been headed for East Liverpool at the time of the accident.

Blood was spattered over a flashlight and other tools.

The car was painted green with a thin line around the body.

Upon orders from the sheriff, the coach was taken to the Crubaugh garage in Lisbon.

County authorities are not inclined to believe that the abandoned car had any connection with the slayers of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, who was shot by gunmen last Thursday night.

Hint "Pay Dirt"

the man who actually committed the murder who knew that it was to be done and who probably knows who did it. This was not the deed of an individual working alone. It probbaly had been talked over. That others had information about it was proved by the telephone warning Mellett received that he would be killed. The person who sent that message knows who killed Mellett and our job now is to locate him and get him to talk."

"I have received a number of tips and leads. Just what they are worth remains to be seen. They may play out as some of the others have done, but on the other hand any one of them may lead to something that will be direct."

Petition Goes to Donahey.

With the meeting of the inter-city council of all the civic clubs of Canton today it was expected that a committee of 100 of the leading business men will be named to work with the county officials and possibly with state and federal officials in prosecuting the search for the slayers of 36-year-old publisher of the Canton News, and in cleaning up the city.

No definite plans have been formulated but it was generally believed that a shake-up in the Canton police department, possibly resulting in the suspension, resignation or dismissal of Chief of Police S. A. Lengel, was imminent.

A petition directed to Governor Vic Donahey and signed by approximately 5,000 church-goers, asking the governor to use every power within the grasp of his office to investigate conditions here and conduct a clean-up of the city was to be forwarded to Columbus today.

Other Detectives on Job.

In the meantime, Detective Slater, placed in command of all the probes of the Mellett case, was conferring with city officials and following up several new clues.

Slater, who was brought here by a group of Ohio newspapers is now working for the county of Stark. At a conference Sunday it was decided that it would be a better policy to have Slater directly in the employ of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

The Canton News has employed H. J. Burton, another famous detective, who will cooperate with Slater. In addition, C. H. Sisson, Governor Donahey's special investigator, is said to be here, working independently on the case.

Chief of Police Lengel said today he had questioned closely a number of underworld characters but had been unable to unearth a single tangible clew. He criticized Safety Director Earl Hexamer for not co-operating with the police department.

"I haven't seen Hexamer for two days," Lengel said. "I am going to learn today why I am being passed up in connection with the Mellett probe developments."

Pastor is Threatened.

It developed today that Rev. W. H. Longworth, pastor of the First Congregational church, who some time ago made a fight for a clean-up of the underworld here, had also received death threats.

Longworth kept up his fight for some time but finally gave up because he was fighting alone and failed to receive support from the so-called "better element" of the city.

In his sermon yesterday Rev. Mr. Longworth declared, "Mellett might still be the publisher of the News if the men and women of Canton who know and love the right had come to his aid in the name of common decency and upheld his strong right arm."

The pastors of the city churches made the Mellett murder the subject of their sermons Sunday. They appealed to their congregations for an awakening to the real situation and to action looking for an improvement in the future.

PITTSBURGH, July 19. — George Psialias, alias "George the Greek," notorious western Pennsylvania underworld character, wanted for questioning in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, today was taken into custody by police here.

Psialias, according to police, admitted he was in the vicinity of Canton the night of the shooting but denied any knowledge of the crime, other than information obtained through reading the newspapers.

He told police that on the night Mellett was killed he stayed in Warren, O., about 35 miles from Canton.

power, will be as nearly danger proof as is possible now.

With one of the three engines "dead," the plane can continue its journey. If two engines stop, which would happen rarely, the pilot could still travel 20 to 30 miles, depending on his altitude, in search of a safe landing place.

Each plane will carry eight swivel chairs for passengers, and the new Ford plane should make an ideal carrier for about eight of our swivel chair airplane authorities that have held back aviation in this country.

J. L. Garvin, in the London Observer, says Henry Ford killed the Karl Marx theories when he established five dollars a day as a minimum wage. Marx built up his theories from deep looks in the British museum. Ford built his plan in a factory, studying men.

Five dollars a day that you really get, or six dollars, the present Ford minimum, is better than any theory telling how to get the $5 or $6 a day by and by.

But no real problem is solved by a $6 wage. That is only one step toward decent living, and $6 is far from enough.

IT SOUNDS like anarchy, bolshevism and blasphemy to say it, but as general American prosperity has increased, since wages were raised from $1 to $5, so it would improve in proportion if they were raised, as they will be in time, from $5 to $25 a day.

Years hense $125 for a five-day week will not seem strange.

But wages do not settle everything. Men want the incentive of being in business for themselves, the excitement of making more when they do better work. They want freedom from monotony, and they want variety in occupation.

SEVEN DIE AS STORM SWEEPS NEW ENGLAND

Property Toll is Estimated to be $1,000,000.

TERRIFIC WIND

Lightning Causes Havoc in Towns of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, July 19.—Emerging from one of the worst storms in recent years, New England began a checkup today of the havoc wrought by lightning and a 100-mile an hour wind that killed seven persons and took a property toll of approximately $1,000,000.

Lightning bolts claimed four lives.

Two persons were drowned, and one was crushed to death by a falling tree.

Springfield, Mass., was hard hit, damage there alone totaling nearly $500,000.

An awe-inspiring electrical display accompanied the cyclonic winds.

Hailstones fell, trees were uprooted and traffic and communication was disrupted temporarily.

Marie A. Dubois, 19, of Adams, Mass., was killed when she touched the hand of her brother, Alfred, who had been felled by a lightning bolt, and who, strangely enough, was not seriously hurt.

One Dead in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, July 19. — One dead and one seriously injured was the toll today of a series of storms that struck several sections of Ohio Sunday afternoon and evening, in several places leaving losses from winds and heavy rainfall.

Dr. Harvey C. Highman, 31, local dentist, was crushed to death and a fellow camper, Ernest G. Davis, 30, suffered a broken leg when caught by a falling tree as they fled from their camp near Delaware, Ohio. Mrs. Highman and Mrs. Davis escaped, having reached an open clearing. All had been bathing in the Oletangy river. Mrs. Highman ran two miles through the storm to procure aid. Dr. Highman was a native of Woodsfield, Ohio.

Heavy wind caused slight damage to crops in the rural districts near Marietta, Ohio, while a heavy rainfall and severe lightning swept Newark and vicinity according to the weather bureau here.

ZANESVILLE, July 19.—Hail stones as large as walnuts crashed through the tops of automobiles and broke windshields during yesterday afternoon's terrific hail, rain and wind storm. Numerous trees in the city were uprooted, telephone poles were snapped in two, and gardeners suffered thousands of damages from ruined crops. Thousands of acres of sweet corn were shredded by the fail.

In Morgan county, farther down the Muskingum valley, the wind was even stronger, blowing the roof off the baseball grandstand and injuring several people but none seriously. A score or more of silos on Morgan county farms in the vicinity of McConnellsville and Stockport were demolished.

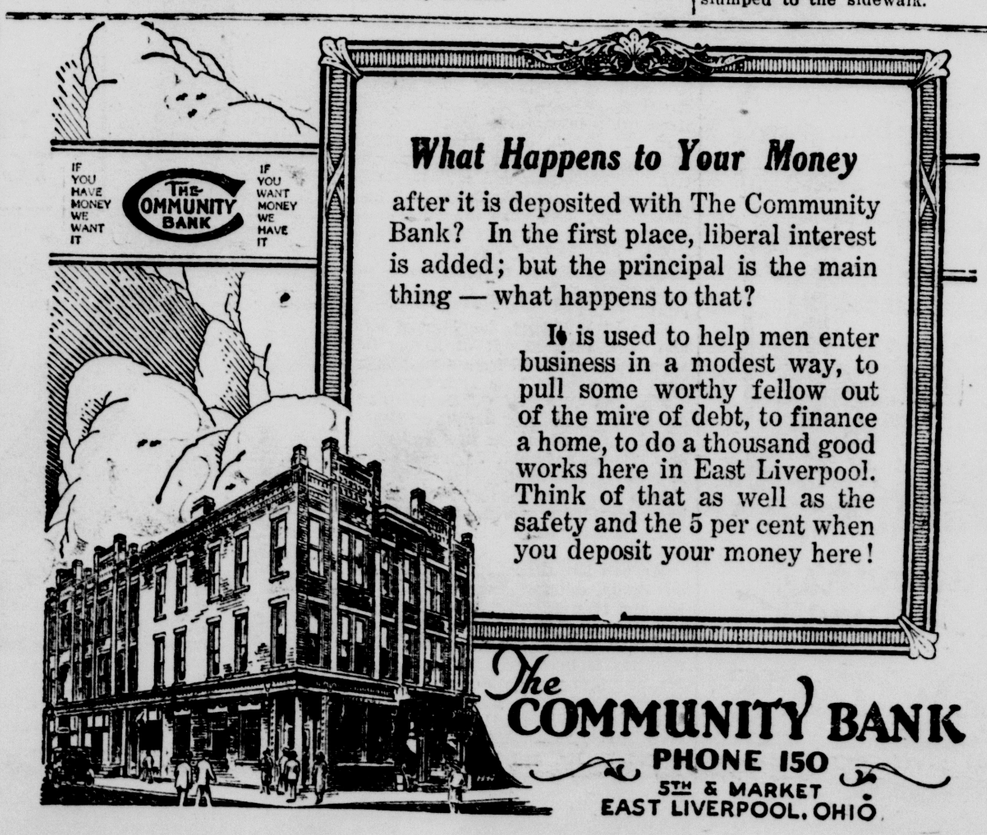

Ride Plane in Storm.

MARIETTA, July 19.—Tales of a thrilling ride aboard a Douglas type of government transport airplane which was caught in a gigantic air pocket between two severe storms and wrecked in a spectacular landing in a cornfield, were told today by seven soldiers under Lieutenant Clifford C. Nutt of New York, who reached Beverley, Ohio, after a night of hardships.

local postoffice, and brought to the hospital. She was attended by Dr. R. J. Marshall.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. Leona Standley, Waterloo street, grandmother of the child, who was seated on the front porch of the Longnecker home, and Mrs. Floyd Liske, Lincoln, Ill., an aunt. Both claim that Crawford, who was enroute to a gas filling station, was traveling at a rapid rate of speed. Crawford said that the youngster stepped directly from behind another machine parked beside the road in front of his automobile. He was accompanied by his wife at the time of the accident.

Leetonia Accident.

The Leetonia accident occurred as the four motorists were on their way home after attending a dance in Lisbon. The car, said to have been traveling rapidly, sideswiped the automobile which was in charge of Cecil Jordan, of Columbiana, who was returning from Greenville, Pa., where he is employed. A woman accompanied Jordan.

The Marks car left the road, hurtled an open drain, vaulted to the top of an embankment, jumped 30 feet, took a nose dive and overturned three times before it came to a stop in a corn field on the Edward Jack farm.

Pinned Under Wreckage.

Candle was pinned under the wreckage, but his companions were thrown from the car before it turned turtle.

Jordan stopped his car and he and his companion walked back to render first aid.

The Jack family was awakened and the injured cared for in their home by Dr. Paul H. Beaver, of Leetonia, and later were removed to the Cetral clinic at Salem.

The wrecked car was pulled from the corn field early Sunday morning and taken to East Palestine.

YEGGS ABANDON STOLEN COACH

Dynamite and Burglar Tools Found in Car on Road.

County authorities are seeking the owner of a late model Chevrolet coach, wrecked along the Lincoln highway, north of West Point, at an early hour this morning after it is believed to have been stolen by a band of yeggs.

Underneath the cushion of the rear seat were found several sticks of dynamite, caps, fuses, soap and burglar tools. The license plates had been removed and the motor and serial numbers of the car so battered they could not be read.

According to Sheriff George Wright, who made an investigation, the car was abondoned about 3 o'clock this morning, after it overturned in a ditch alongside the road about midway between West Point and Gilmore's stop on the Y. & O. The machine is believed to have been headed for East Liverpool at the time of the accident.

Blood was spattered over a flashlight and other tools.

The car was painted green with a thin line around the body.

Upon orders from the sheriff, the coach was taken to the Crubaugh garage in Lisbon.

County authorities are not inclined to believe that the abandoned car had any connection with the slayers of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, who was shot by gunmen last Thursday night.

Hint "Pay Dirt"

the man who actually committed the murder who knew that it was to be done and who probably knows who did it. This was not the deed of an individual working alone. It probbaly had been talked over. That others had information about it was proved by the telephone warning Mellett received that he would be killed. The person who sent that message knows who killed Mellett and our job now is to locate him and get him to talk."

"I have received a number of tips and leads. Just what they are worth remains to be seen. They may play out as some of the others have done, but on the other hand any one of them may lead to something that will be direct."

Petition Goes to Donahey.

With the meeting of the inter-city council of all the civic clubs of Canton today it was expected that a committee of 100 of the leading business men will be named to work with the county officials and possibly with state and federal officials in prosecuting the search for the slayers of 36-year-old publisher of the Canton News, and in cleaning up the city.

No definite plans have been formulated but it was generally believed that a shake-up in the Canton police department, possibly resulting in the suspension, resignation or dismissal of Chief of Police S. A. Lengel, was imminent.

A petition directed to Governor Vic Donahey and signed by approximately 5,000 church-goers, asking the governor to use every power within the grasp of his office to investigate conditions here and conduct a clean-up of the city was to be forwarded to Columbus today.

Other Detectives on Job.

In the meantime, Detective Slater, placed in command of all the probes of the Mellett case, was conferring with city officials and following up several new clues.

Slater, who was brought here by a group of Ohio newspapers is now working for the county of Stark. At a conference Sunday it was decided that it would be a better policy to have Slater directly in the employ of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

The Canton News has employed H. J. Burton, another famous detective, who will cooperate with Slater. In addition, C. H. Sisson, Governor Donahey's special investigator, is said to be here, working independently on the case.

Chief of Police Lengel said today he had questioned closely a number of underworld characters but had been unable to unearth a single tangible clew. He criticized Safety Director Earl Hexamer for not co-operating with the police department.

"I haven't seen Hexamer for two days," Lengel said. "I am going to learn today why I am being passed up in connection with the Mellett probe developments."

Pastor is Threatened.

It developed today that Rev. W. H. Longworth, pastor of the First Congregational church, who some time ago made a fight for a clean-up of the underworld here, had also received death threats.

Longworth kept up his fight for some time but finally gave up because he was fighting alone and failed to receive support from the so-called "better element" of the city.

In his sermon yesterday Rev. Mr. Longworth declared, "Mellett might still be the publisher of the News if the men and women of Canton who know and love the right had come to his aid in the name of common decency and upheld his strong right arm."

The pastors of the city churches made the Mellett murder the subject of their sermons Sunday. They appealed to their congregations for an awakening to the real situation and to action looking for an improvement in the future.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 19.—Speculative interest was largely centered in the motor stocks and high priced industrials in the early trading in the stock market today. After registering a new high at 169⅜, General Motors retired from the position of leadership in the motor stocks, in favor of Hudson Motors. This stock was whipped up in heavy trading to 60 for a recovery of 3 points. Jordan declined 4 points to a new low at 21, down 45 points from the high of the year.

Five dollars a day that you really get, or six dollars, the present Ford minimum, is better than any theory telling how to get the $5 or $6 a day by and by.

But no real problem is solved by a $6 wage. That is only one step toward decent living, and $6 is far from enough.

IT SOUNDS like anarchy, bolshevism and blasphemy to say it, but as general American prosperity has increased, since wages were raised from $1 to $5, so it would improve in proportion if they were raised, as they will be in time, from $5 to $25 a day.

Years hense $125 for a five-day week will not seem strange.

But wages do not settle everything. Men want the incentive of being in business for themselves, the excitement of making more when they do better work. They want freedom from monotony, and they want variety in occupation.

CARD OF THANKS.

We wish to express our sincere thanks to all neighbors and friends for their many kindnesses and beautiful floral offerings in the sickness and death of our beloved mother, daughter and sister.

SEVEN DIE AS STORM SWEEPS NEW ENGLAND

Property Toll is Estimated to be $1,000,000.

TERRIFIC WIND

Lightning Causes Havoc in Towns of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, July 19.—Emerging from one of the worst storms in recent years, New England began a checkup today of the havoc wrought by lightning and a 100-mile an hour wind that killed seven persons and took a property toll of approximately $1,000,000.

Lightning bolts claimed four lives.

Two persons were drowned, and one was crushed to death by a falling tree.

Springfield, Mass., was hard hit, damage there alone totaling nearly $500,000.

An awe-inspiring electrical display accompanied the cyclonic winds.

Hailstones fell, trees were uprooted and traffic and communication was disrupted temporarily.

Marie A. Dubois, 19, of Adams, Mass., was killed when she touched the hand of her brother, Alfred, who had been felled by a lightning bolt, and who, strangely enough, was not seriously hurt.

One Dead in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, July 19. — One dead and one seriously injured was the toll today of a series of storms that struck several sections of Ohio Sunday afternoon and evening, in several places leaving losses from winds and heavy rainfall.

Dr. Harvey C. Highman, 31, local dentist, was crushed to death and a fellow camper, Ernest G. Davis, 30, suffered a broken leg when caught by a falling tree as they fled from their camp near Delaware, Ohio. Mrs. Highman and Mrs. Davis escaped, having reached an open clearing. All had been bathing in the Oletangy river. Mrs. Highman ran two miles through the storm to procure aid. Dr. Highman was a native of Woodsfield, Ohio.

Heavy wind caused slight damage to crops in the rural districts near Marietta, Ohio, while a heavy rainfall and severe lightning swept Newark and vicinity according to the weather bureau here.

ZANESVILLE, July 19.—Hail stones as large as walnuts crashed through the tops of automobiles and broke windshields during yesterday afternoon's terrific hail, rain and wind storm. Numerous trees in the city were uprooted, telephone poles were snapped in two, and gardeners suffered thousands of damages from ruined crops. Thousands of acres of sweet corn were shredded by the fail.

In Morgan county, farther down the Muskingum valley, the wind was even stronger, blowing the roof off the baseball grandstand and injuring several people but none seriously. A score or more of silos on Morgan county farms in the vicinity of McConnellsville and Stockport were demolished.

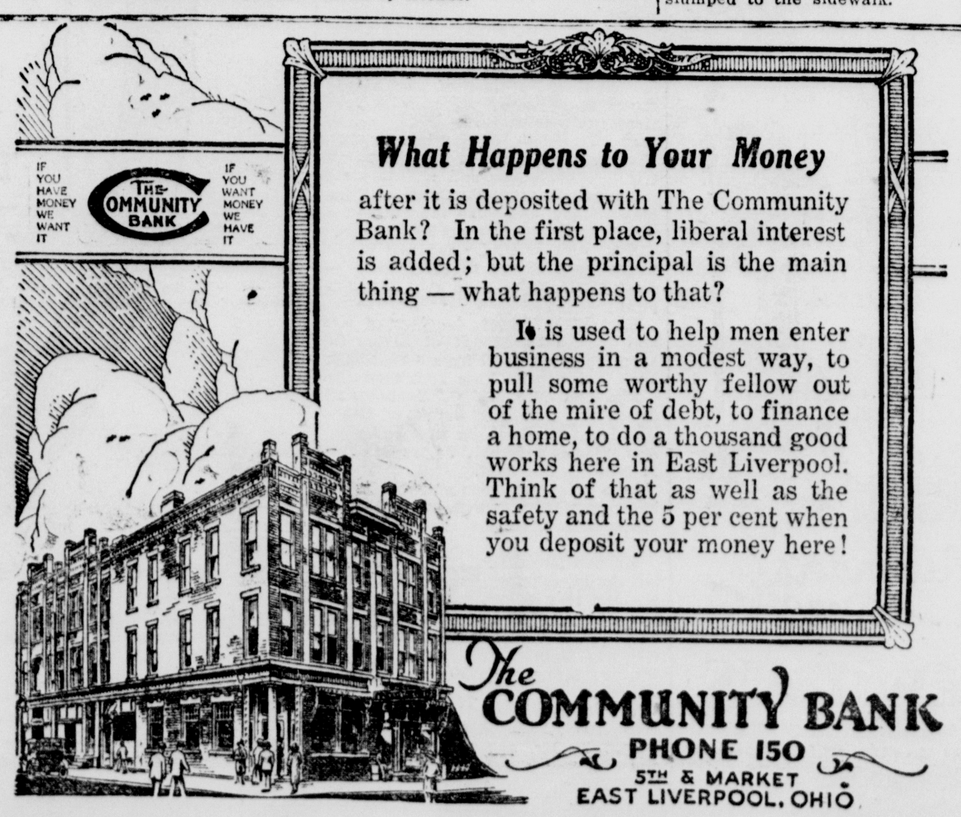

Ride Plane in Storm.

MARIETTA, July 19.—Tales of a thrilling ride aboard a Douglas type of government transport airplane which was caught in a gigantic air pocket between two severe storms and wrecked in a spectacular landing in a cornfield, were told today by seven soldiers under Lieutenant Clifford C. Nutt of New York, who reached Beverley, Ohio, after a night of hardships.

BANDITS KILL MAN IN HOLD-UP

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—George M. Condit, 70, a messenger for the Reid Ice Cream company, was killed and Joseph Duff, 18, another messenger, was wounded today when four bandits fired on them as they left the company's plant here with $5,000 which they were taking to a bank. The bandits escaped with the money in a limousine, eluding pursuing policemen.

The messengers were in a coupe. Condit pitched from the car and Duff slumped to the sidewalk.

'LADY OF HAREM' AT CERAMIC

Greta Nissen, Ernest Torrence, William Collier in Cast.

A spectacle production filled with stirring action and powerful situations is "The Lady of the Harem," a story of ancient Persia which has just been completed for Paramount by Raoul Walsh, and which arrived at the Ceramic theatre today for a three-day run.

Few productions can compare with "The Lady of the Harem" for beauty of photography, tremendous scenes and thrilling situations, according to those critics who have already viewed the photoplay.

Heroine Taken to Harem.

Because Greta Nissen's father is unable to pay the taxes on his small farm, soldiers of Khorasan seize and carry her to the harem of the oppressive sultan.

Assisted by Ernest Torrence, a kind hearted confectioner, William Collier Jr., attempts to regain her but his efforts prove futile. Desperate, Collier joins a beggar band and assumes its leadership. He swears vengeance on the Sultan.

In another attempt to rescue Miss Nissen, Collier is captured and sentenced to die in the Tomb of Love amid feasting and music. Torrence, however, learns of his friend's fate and hastily summons the beggars to save their leader.

Army Swims River.

How the three thousand rebels brave the treacherous waters of a mighty river, attack the Sultan's army and rescue their leader from a terrible death goes to make a story that stands as one of the few really great spectacle productions of all times.

The scenario for "The Lady of the Harem" was prepared by James T. O'DDonohoe, who also wrote the adaptation of "The Wanderer." The story is from James Elroy Flecker's famous stage play, "Hassan."

DEATH OF GOV. SMALL'S WIFE BRINGS FREEDOM TO MAN DOOMED TO HANG

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The thud of hammers in the hands of workmen erecting a gallows not only saved Ignatz Potz from the gallows but will make him a free man October 11 1930.

And it was all due to the fact that the noise reached the ears of the wife of Gov. Len Small, who was present when the governor at that time was on trial in Waukegan on charges of having failed to turn over to the state certain interest on funds collected during his term as state treasurer.

When Mrs. Small heard the blows she inquired as to their source and was told that they came from the gallows on which Potz was to be executed for the murder of William Peterson, a motorcycle policeman. So she asked the governor to commute Potz's sentence.

Before the execution, however, Mrs. Small died and the governor remembered her plea and commuted Potz's sentence to life imprisonment.

Then on the fourth anniversary of here death recently the governor again commuted the man's sentence this time to freedom on the date set.

Now residents of Lake county are recalling the sensational trial of Potz and his four companions.

Potz and his mates had borrowed an automobile for a hunting trip and, it is alleged, drank freely. While passing through Winthrop Harbor at a rapid rate they were chased by Peterson on a motorcycle. Suddenly a shotgun was poked through the rear window of a machine, a shot sounded and Peterson hurtled from his cycle dead. The men escaped at that time but later were captured. Potz's companions all shifted the blame to him and there seemed to be some doubt as to his understanding of the proceedings.

New SAFETY STUTZ
with safety glass in all windows

"It is a serious question whether manufacturers in the past have given adequate thought to the element of safety in the cars they have sold to the general public. Over a period of years our motor-car manufacturers have stressed everything but safety features...."

F. W. JOHNSON, Director Citizens Safety Committee of Philadelphia at the 1926 National Conference on Street and Highway Safety—SECRETARY HOOVER, Chairman.

WE now announce New SAFETY STUTZ models, including seven-passenger cars, in which every window, as well as windshield, is of special safety-glass.

This eliminates the hazard of injury from flying shattered glass, at front, sides and rear. These New SAFETY STUTZ models are the first cars ever built regularly equipped with safety-glass all around.

The phenomenal sales of the New SAFETY STUTZ attest the success with which this advanced automobile meets the public demand of today.

And the New SAFETY STUTZ, already the world's safest automobile, is now made still safer for its occupants.

No other car has this combination of safety features:

Safety-glass in windshield and all windows. Narrow, clear-vision front corner-posts.

Frame of unequalled strength and rigidity, with integral steel running-boards ("side-bumpers").

Perfect road balance; elimination of side-sway achieved by scientific frame and spring arrangement. Stabilators and long, low-rate flat springs co-ordinated for ideal action.

Unparalleled stability, gained by a radical lowering of the "center of mass" of the car. The resistance to overturn is so great that one side of the car may be raised more than three feet higher than the other without toppling the car over. This lowering of the center of mass is made possible by the New SAFETY STUTZ worm-gear drive, manufactured by Timken.

Hydrostatic four-wheel brakes, developed and built by Timken; greatly increased effective braking surface, with perfect equalization of braking energy at all points on each wheel. Non-leaking, no adjusting; quick, even deceleration—no discomfort to passengers, no skidding, no swerving, no side-sway.

Instant acceleration from ten to fifty miles per hour in less than eighteen seconds; an alertness that quickly pulls the car out of tight places. And speed adequate for all occasions.

The entire car has Underwriters' Class A rating on both fire and theft. It is permanently protected at no cost to the car owner by The Fedco Number Plate System in co-operation with the William J. Burns International Detective Agency.

Furthermore, the owner of each New SAFETY STUTZ, Fedco-numbered, is given insurance against loss of use resulting from theft, with indemnity of five dollars per day, up to thirty days.

We are now showing these New SAFETY STUTZ models which, in addition to their exclusive safety features, have a custom-like smartness of body design and the utmost luxury of appointments.

The Symbol of Safety

Now residents of Lake county are recalling the sensational trial of Potz and his four companions.

Potz and his mates had borrowed an automobile for a hunting trip and, it is alleged, drank freely. While passing through Winthrop Harbor at a rapid rate they were chased by Peterson on a motorcycle. Suddenly a shotgun was poked through the rear window of a machine, a shot sounded and Peterson hurtled from his cycle dead. The men escaped at that time but later were captured. Potz's companions all shifted the blame to him and there seemed to be some doubt as to his understanding of the proceedings.

First showing New SAFETY STUTZ with safety glass in all windows

"It is a serious question whether manufacturers in the past have given adequate thought to the element of safety in the cars they have sold to the general public. Over a period of years our motor-car manufacturers have stressed everything but safety features...."

F. W. JOHNSON, Director Citizens Safety Committee of Philadelphia at the 1926 National Conference on Street and Highway Safety— SECRETARY HOOVER, Chairman.

WE now announce New SAFETY STUTZ models, including seven-passenger cars, in which every window, as well as windshield, is of special safety-glass.

This eliminates the hazard of injury from flying shattered glass, at front, sides and rear. These New SAFETY STUTZ models are the first cars ever built regularly equipped with safety-glass all around.

The phenomenal sales of the New SAFETY STUTZ attest the success with which this advanced automobile meets the public demand of today.

And the New SAFETY STUTZ, already the world's safest automobile, is now made still safer for its occupants.

No other car has this combination of safety features:

Safety-glass in windshield and all windows. Narrow, clear-vision front corner-posts.

Frame of unequalled strength and rigidity, with integral steel running-boards ("side-bumpers").

Perfect road balance; elimination of side-sway achieved by scientific frame and spring arrangement. Stabilators and long, low-rate flat springs co-ordinated for ideal action.

Unparalleled stability, gained by a radical lowering of the "center of mass" of the car. The resistance to overturn is so great that one side of the car may be raised more than three feet higher than the other without toppling the car over. This lowering of the center of mass is made possible by the New SAFETY STUTZ worm-gear drive, manufactured by Timken.

Hydrostatic four-wheel brakes, developed and built by Timken; greatly increased effective braking surface, with perfect equalization of braking energy at all points on each wheel. Non-leaking, no adjusting; quick, even deceleration—no discomfort to passengers, no skidding, no swerving, no side-sway.

Instant acceleration from ten to fifty miles per hour in less than eighteen seconds; an alertness that quickly pulls the car out of tight places. And speed adequate for all occasions.

The entire car has Underwriters' Class A rating on both fire and theft. It is permanently protected at no cost to the car owner by The Fedco Number Plate System in co-operation with the William J. Burns International Detective Agency.

Furthermore, the owner of each New SAFETY STUTZ, Fedco-numbered, is given insurance against loss of use resulting from theft, with indemnity of five dollars per day, up to thirty days.

We are now showing these New SAFETY STUTZ models which, in addition to their exclusive safety features, have a custom-like smartness of body design and the utmost luxury of appointments.

Here's the Truth About Your Weight

EXCESSIVE THINNESS IS DANGEROUS

Regardless of how well you may feel today—if you are ten or more pounds underweight and have been that way for any length of time — you should frankly and honestly consider the matter seriously.

Ask yourself these questions: Why am I underweight? Can such a condition be natural and perfectly allright? Is it possible for me to be really Healthy—look and feel my best — and still be excessively thin? Why do Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell insurance to those who are apparently in perfect health, but considerably underweight?

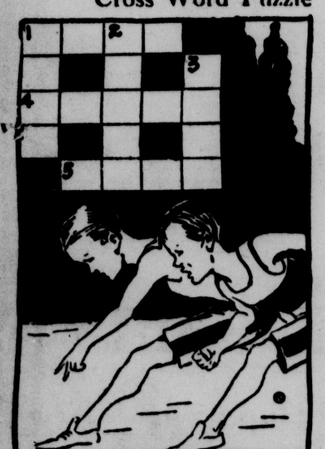

If you care enough about your Health, you will treat this matter seriously, and quickly take steps to correct it — then before long, perhaps a week or ten days, you can look for a beneficial change.

In the successful treatment of Low Vitality and subnormal weight, proper nourishment is of utmost importance. And, in this connection, the powerfully concentrated flesh building value, the physical power and strength, contained in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are especially recommended and supplied by Carnahan's Drug Stores and all druggists—60 tablets for 60 cents on a money back if not satisfied plan.

Thousands of users have been benefited—"Gained 10 pounds in 22 days"—"11½ pounds in 60 days"—"15 pounds in six weeks"—This is amazing evidence!

Remember, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — actually contain the valuable extractives of Cod Livers — but minus the offensive odor and taste. Tiny, tasteless and pleasant to use. Nearly 20 million tablets sold last month in the United States and Canada alone. If you need a treatment of this kind, try "McCoy's Tablets" today!

MORE TOTS GO TO 'GAINMORE'

Twenty-four Children Now in County Health Camp.

With 24 children now at the Columbiana county public health camp on the W. K. George farm in Madison township, east of the Lincoln highway, arrangements have been made to receive three more tots within the next few days.

The camp has been named "Gainmore." Although the camp was five days late in opening, due to the loss of a shipment of sleeping tents, the children quickly entered into the routine after their arrival.

"The children are all contented and happy," declared Miss Masters, county public health nurse, today. "This is in spite of the fact that the weather has been somewhat cool, compared with the weather we had last year. The rain also made it rather inconvenient for the little ones the first few days in camp, but they quickly adapted themselves to the situation."

Mrs. Zoe McCaleb, chief of the department of nursing of the state department of health, has made her first visit to the camp, and not only placed her stamp of approval upon it and the personnel, but also was pleased with the prospects the camp presented this year.

The camp is in receipt of many donations, including refreshments for the Sunday meals, toys, phonograph records.

Those children now enrolled on the camp roster are as follows:

Wellsville—Carl Bonidear, Richard Watson and Sylvia Hincy.

Jack Dempsey To Defend Title Against Tunney In Chicago

Expect Tex Rickard to Announce Plans In Statement Today

'Authentic Reports Name Soldiers' Field as Site and September, on or About 16th, as Date; Gibson Asks Promoter to Delay Announcement.

By George A. Strickler.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Despite Tex Rickard's diplomatic denials that a definte decision had been reached in the matter of a Dempsey-Tunney world's heavyweight bout, it was authentically learned today the New York impressario had confided to certain notables close to the sporting public that the bout would be staged here in September, on or about the 16th.

The site, as originally announced in New York Saturday, is said to be Soldiers' field in Grant park, although Rickard declined to confirm this until this afternoon when he has promised an official statement disclosing all details in connection with his visit here and, presumably the announcement of the bout, including the site, the promoter, and the backers.

Two emissaries arrived here this morning from New York to persuade Rickard to delay the issuance of this statement until after the New York Athletic commission meets tomorrow. Rickard received several telephone calls from Gotham yesterday and this morning imploring him to withold his announcement, most notably being one from Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, who said he had been in conference with Commissioner Muldoon of the New York commission. Rickard was unwilling to disclose the nature of the conference.

Rickard, however, declared these interruptions would have no bearing on the issuance of the statement, which would transpire this afternoon as per schedule.

Will Locate in Chicago.

Chicago will become the promoter's permanent headquarters, he told reporters, if he decides to stage the Dempsey-Tunney bout in this city. Numerous requests have come from western and southwestern people of influence, he said, for him to locate in Chicago, which is better located in a central position and easier accessible for fans from all parts of the country than New York or Boyle's thirty acres. Rickard also believes Chicago offers greater opportunities now than New York.

Tex slipped into Chicago unannounced on Saturday and immediately went into conference with the "committee of five," as yet unidentified, but described by him as "five of the biggest men in Chicago." His only definite admission regarding the committee was that they had formerly dealt in the matter of a world's heavyweight title bout in this city.

"When I make my announcement, the names of the men interested with me in the project will hold public interest in the enterprise," Rickard said. "I will turn the fight over to them and will remain entirely in the background."

What, if any, impression Rickard's announcement will have on the Illinois state boxing commission was a matter of conjecture today, but it was rumored among those reputed to be in the know that the holding of a Dempsey-Tunney bout at this time and the "ingusion" of Rickard would create no little concern at the commission headquarters.

Denies He's Married.

Richard was too busy yesterday and early today issuing denials and counter statements regarding his romance with Miss Maxine Elliott Hodges, 19-year-old actress of Chicago, formerly a well known child actress, to discuss the fight situation at length with reporters.

In the matter of Miss Hodges, who Rickard's friends say he has already married, the promoter declared he was only engaged to the actress and that they would be married in the fall. He gave her age as 25 and said he had known her for eight years.

Distpatches yesterday quoted Miss Hodges as saying they were already married and would make the announcement in the fall. They further declared Rickard had taken a new apartment on Park avenue, in New York and furnished it for his bride. Rickard stopped long enough over his breakfast today to issue further denials to these statements and hurried off to meet the "committee of five."

Miss Hodges is said to be visiting friends here while Rickard negotiates the Dempsey affair with which he expects to break all existing attendance and gate receipts records.

ALL'S WELLS!

As Far as Detroit Southpaw and Cobb are Concerned

The rural mailman who delivers the daily paper—along with the usual letters—on Route No. 5, down Ashland, O., way, can some day inform the proud listeners that he used to deliver mail to Edwin Wells' home.

For Edwin Wells, as a lefthander and member of the Detroit ball club, is hurling his way to fame these days.

He is one of the reasons why the Jungaleers are still in the swim, despite failure of new men to break into the machine, the usual rumors of Ty Cobb being mad at some of his players and asking his ma to keep them out of his yard, and what not.

As this is written Wells is the biggest winner on the Detroit team.

He has pitched four shutout games to date—or had when this was written. One of his interesting feats to date was a run of 28 scoreless innings.

Last year he won 6, lost 9 games. The victories were scattered among the league teams. Cleveland, however, made life miserable for Edwin. They proceeded to sock him just four times. However, Wells indicated that he was in the big show to stick.

Wells and Whitehill give the Detroit club two sweet southpaws. And two that the club should have had for some time. Wells is only 26—passed his twenty-sixth birthday last month. He's a sturdy gent with an easy motion and plenty of confidence.

He has been handicapped in recent weeks by the absence of Johnny Bassler, veteran catcher, who worked with him in all his games until a broken ankle laid the backstop low or thereabouts.

He attracted attention with his pitching for Bethany college and hopped almost directly from the campus to the corral of the Detroit club. The Ludington team signed him after he was graduated, but he was with that outfit only a short time before the Tigers signed him. Quite naturally he needed a bit of seasoning and was sent to the Birmingham team. That was in 1923. Then the Tigers recalled him and have had him ever since.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The National league race has developed a merry scramble which tightened up as the result of Cincinnati's defeat by Brooklyn. Only three games separate the Reds and the fifth-place Cubs, with the Giants a game and a half behind the Bruins.

Bob McGraw's pitching was the big gun in Brooklyn's 2 to 1 victory over the Reds. Pete Donohue also was there with bells on but Cincinnati's errors spilled the beans.

The Cardinals nosed out the Phillies in the ninth, 9 to 7, on Southworth's homer. The Quakers slid gracefully back into the cellar.

The Yankees suffered their first shutout of the season when Zachary, of the Browns, blanked them, 4 to 0. Four double plays were made by the Browns.

SKULL PRACTICE

Bill Tilden has won the national clay court title six times. But nobody has predicted he's due to lose the title soon. Nobody cares.

Pirates have hurler named Songer. He must be the perfect pitching participle of sing.

Catcher Gooch, of the Pittsburgh club, was put out of the game for protesting a decision while the Giants were scoring 17 runs in two games the other day. Gooch must have been arguing for the principle of the thing.

Rogers Bresnahan stirs up excitement at Polo grounds when he asks for police protection at players' bench. Folks can't figure out whether he was afraid someone would steal the bats or his new pack of chewing tobacco.

Rogers Hornsby's batting average has slipped so far now that a lot of batters hope to equal it in a couple of years.

George Burns, Cleveland first sacker who leads the league in doubles, plans to go after the tripling title as soon as his broken rib heals.

He fled from the rain and sat under the waterspout.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When the left arm is kept rather straight — not rigid—in the back swing there is a feeling of considerable tightness in the grip as the club nears the top. It is O. K. for the grip to be very tight in the hands and wrists, but the player should be careful to keep this tightness just short of actual stiffness. The tightness in the grip exerts quite a pull against the left shoulder. The thing to do when you feel this is to stop the back swing, since the chances are the club will be plenty far enough back and up when this tightening-up feeling occurs. The full-length back swing—that is, all the back swing you require—is probably considerably short of the loose, long back swings you may be using.

ALL'S WELLS!

As Far as Detroit Southpaw and Cobb are Concerned

The rural mailman who delivers the daily paper—along with the usual letters—on Route No. 5, down Ashland, O., way, can some day inform the proud listeners that he used to deliver mail to Edwin Wells' home.

For Edwin Wells, as a lefthander and member of the Detroit ball club, is hurling his way to fame these days.

He is one of the reasons why the Jungaleers are still in the swim, despite failure of new men to break into the machine, the usual rumors of Ty Cobb being mad at some of his players and asking his ma to keep them out of his yard, and what not.

As this is written Wells is the biggest winner on the Detroit team.

He has pitched four shutout games to date—or had when this was written. One of his interesting feats to date was a run of 28 scoreless innings.

Last year he won 6, lost 9 games. The victories were scattered among the league teams. Cleveland, however, made life miserable for Edwin. They proceeded to sock him just four times. However, Wells indicated that he was in the big show to stick.

Wells and Whitehill give the Detroit club two sweet southpaws. And two that the club should have had for some time. Wells is only 26—passed his twenty-sixth birthday last month. He's a sturdy gent with an easy motion and plenty of confidence.

He has been handicapped in recent weeks by the absence of Johnny Bassler, veteran catcher, who worked with him in all his games until a broken ankle laid the backstop low or thereabouts.

He attracted attention with his pitching for Bethany college and hopped almost directly from the campus to the corral of the Detroit club. The Ludington team signed him after he was graduated, but he was with that outfit only a short time before the Tigers signed him. Quite naturally he needed a bit of seasoning and was sent to the Birmingham team. That was in 1923. Then the Tigers recalled him and have had him ever since.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The National league race has developed a merry scramble which tightened up as the result of Cincinnati's defeat by Brooklyn. Only three games separate the Reds and the fifth-place Cubs, with the Giants a game and a half behind the Bruins.

Bob McGraw's pitching was the big gun in Brooklyn's 2 to 1 victory over the Reds. Pete Donohue also was there with bells on but Cincinnati's errors spilled the beans.

The Cardinals nosed out the Phillies in the ninth, 9 to 7, on Southworth's homer. The Quakers slid gracefully back into the cellar.

The Yankees suffered their first shutout of the season when Zachary, of the Browns, blanked them, 4 to 0. Four double plays were made by the Browns.

Rogers Bresnahan stirs up excitement at Polo grounds when he asks for police protection at players' bench. Folks can't figure out whether he was afraid someone would steal the bats or his new pack of chewing tobacco.

Rogers Hornsby's batting average has slipped so far now that a lot of batters hope to equal it in a couple of years.

George Burns, Cleveland first sacker who leads the league in doubles, plans to go after the tripling title as soon as his broken rib heals.

He fled from the rain and sat under the waterspout.

Jack Dempsey To Defend Title Against Tunney In Chicago

Expect Tex Rickard to Announce Plans In Statement Today

'Authentic Reports Name Soldiers' Field as Site and September, on or About 16th, as Date; Gibson Asks Promoter to Delay Announcement.

By George A. Strickler.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Despite Tex Rickard's diplomatic denials that a definte decision had been reached in the matter of a Dempsey-Tunney world's heavyweight bout, it was authentically learned today the New York impressario had confided to certain notables close to the sporting public that the bout would be staged here in September, on or about the 16th.

The site, as originally announced in New York Saturday, is said to be Soldiers' field in Grant park, although Rickard declined to confirm this until this afternoon when he has promised an official statement disclosing all details in connection with his visit here and, presumably the announcement of the bout, including the site, the promoter, and the backers.

Two emissaries arrived here this morning from New York to persuade Rickard to delay the issuance of this statement until after the New York Athletic commission meets tomorrow. Rickard received several telephone calls from Gotham yesterday and this morning imploring him to withold his announcement, most notably being one from Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, who said he had been in conference with Commissioner Muldoon of the New York commission. Rickard was unwilling to disclose the nature of the conference.

Rickard, however, declared these interruptions would have no bearing on the issuance of the statement, which would transpire this afternoon as per schedule.

Will Locate in Chicago.

Chicago will become the promoter's permanent headquarters, he told reporters, if he decides to stage the Dempsey-Tunney bout in this city. Numerous requests have come from western and southwestern people of influence, he said, for him to locate in Chicago, which is better located in a central position and easier accessible for fans from all parts of the country than New York or Boyle's thirty acres. Rickard also believes Chicago offers greater opportunities now than New York.

Tex slipped into Chicago unannounced on Saturday and immediately went into conference with the "committee of five," as yet unidentified, but described by him as "five of the biggest men in Chicago." His only definite admission regarding the committee was that they had formerly dealt in the matter of a world's heavyweight title bout in this city.

"When I make my announcement, the names of the men interested with me in the project will hold public interest in the enterprise," Rickard said. "I will turn the fight over to them and will remain entirely in the background."

What, if any, impression Rickard's announcement will have on the Illinois state boxing commission was a matter of conjecture today, but it was rumored among those reputed to be in the know that the holding of a Dempsey-Tunney bout at this time and the "ingusion" of Rickard would create no little concern at the commission headquarters.

Denies He's Married.

Richard was too busy yesterday and early today issuing denials and counter statements regarding his romance with Miss Maxine Elliott Hodges, 19-year-old actress of Chicago, formerly a well known child actress, to discuss the fight situation at length with reporters.

In the matter of Miss Hodges, who Rickard's friends say he has already married, the promoter declared he was only engaged to the actress and that they would be married in the fall. He gave her age as 25 and said he had known her for eight years.

Distpatches yesterday quoted Miss Hodges as saying they were already married and would make the announcement in the fall. They further declared Rickard had taken a new apartment on Park avenue, in New York and furnished it for his bride. Rickard stopped long enough over his breakfast today to issue further denials to these statements and hurried off to meet the "committee of five."

Miss Hodges is said to be visiting friends here while Rickard negotiates the Dempsey affair with which he expects to break all existing attendance and gate receipts records.

CHICAGO HAS "CAFETERIA COURT"; WIVES "HELP THEMSELVES"

CHICAGO.—Chicago's newest "cafeteria court" has been formally opened here, with alimony as the bill of fare!

The Cook county alimony bureau, sponsored by Superior Judge Joseph J. Sabath, has been granted an appropriation for the expense of collecting and distributing the $5,000,000 in alimony paid by divorced husbands to their former mates.

The first "alimony chef" is Mrs. Margaret Denar, of the board of public welfare, long associated in court and social service work.

It will be her duty to accept from husbands the alimony they have been ordered to pay for the support of former wives and children. She will make out checks for the amounts, and forward them to the beneficiaries.

Judge Sabath, who has a record of handling more than 3,000 divorce cases annually, said he believes other judges of the municipal court through whose court many additional divorce suits are settled, will co-operate.

"I don't care so much about the childless wives," said Judge Sabath, in speaking of the bureau's inauguration.

"But every day, mothers appeal to me for assistance in enforcing the payments of alimony. In many cases they are too poor to hire attorneys to press their claims. Even if they do obtain a lawyer's services, he usually collects about one-half of the money thus obtained, as his fee.

"Under the alimony bureau, all this will be dispensed with, and when a man refuses to pay or otherwise fails to meet the court's order, he will find himself in jail."

CHICAGO HAS "CAFETERIA COURT"; WIVES "HELP THEMSELVES"

CHICAGO.—Chicago's newest "cafeteria court" has been formally opened here, with alimony as the bill of fare!

The Cook county alimony bureau, sponsored by Superior Judge Joseph J. Sabath, has been granted an appropriation for the expense of collecting and distributing the $5,000,000 in alimony paid by divorced husbands to their former mates.

The first "alimony chef" is Mrs. Margaret Denar, of the board of public welfare, long associated in court and social service work.

It will be her duty to accept from husbands the alimony they have been ordered to pay for the support of former wives and children. She will make out checks for the amounts, and forward them to the beneficiaries.

Judge Sabath, who has a record of handling more than 3,000 divorce cases annually, said he believes other judges of the municipal court through whose court many additional divorce suits are settled, will co-operate.

"I don't care so much about the childless wives," said Judge Sabath, in speaking of the bureau's inauguration.

"But every day, mothers appeal to me for assistance in enforcing the payments of alimony. In many cases they are too poor to hire attorneys to press their claims. Even if they do obtain a lawyer's services, he usually collects about one-half of the money thus obtained, as his fee.

"Under the alimony bureau, all this will be dispensed with, and when a man refuses to pay or otherwise fails to meet the court's order, he will find himself in jail."

When Sir Edward Elgar, the noted musician, recently had an inspiration while riding on a London bus he began humming the theme, but was interrupted by an old lady who offered him her seat, saying "You feel ill, don't you?"

With the establishment of national radio broadcasting stations in Denmark, the government has started a campaign to round up listeners who are dodging payment of license fees, only 27,000 of the 100,000 owners of radio sets now being registered.

CHICAGO HAS "CAFETERIA COURT"; WIVES "HELP THEMSELVES"

CHICAGO.—Chicago's newest "cafeteria court" has been formally opened here, with alimony as the bill of fare!

The Cook county alimony bureau, sponsored by Superior Judge Joseph J. Sabath, has been granted an appropriation for the expense of collecting and distributing the $5,000,000 in alimony paid by divorced husbands to their former mates.

The first "alimony chef" is Mrs. Margaret Denar, of the board of public welfare, long associated in court and social service work.

It will be her duty to accept from husbands the alimony they have been ordered to pay for the support of former wives and children. She will make out checks for the amounts, and forward them to the beneficiaries.

Judge Sabath, who has a record of handling more than 3,000 divorce cases annually, said he believes other judges of the municipal court through whose court many additional divorce suits are settled, will co-operate.

"I don't care so much about the childless wives," said Judge Sabath, in speaking of the bureau's inauguration.

"But every day, mothers appeal to me for assistance in enforcing the payments of alimony. In many cases they are too poor to hire attorneys to press their claims. Even if they do obtain a lawyer's services, he usually collects about one-half of the money thus obtained, as his fee.

"Under the alimony bureau, all this will be dispensed with, and when a man refuses to pay or otherwise fails to meet the court's order, he will find himself in jail."

When Sir Edward Elgar, the noted musician, recently had an inspiration while riding on a London bus he began humming the theme, but was interrupted by an old lady who offered him her seat, saying "You feel ill, don't you?"

With the establishment of national radio broadcasting stations in Denmark, the government has started a campaign to round up listeners who are dodging payment of license fees, only 27,000 of the 100,000 owners of radio sets now being registered.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

DELIA had come in, and was quietly undressing in the bed-room. Bee made up the couch for her. Then Lou left them together. They spoke only of surface things, casually—whether there were covers enough. Bee got a steamer rug from the closet.

Finally Delia spoke, hesitatingly: "You spoke about that girl, Bee. The one that was in love with Arthur—Rockwell." She hesitated over the first name; and then, as if it were a rather hasty afterthought, added the surname. Her voice was low and uncertain. "I was wondering a little—you said she just drifted out. Doesn't anybody know what became of her?"

"Oh, I don't know.' Bee was holding a pillow-slip in her teeth and crowding one of the soft-cushions into it. "It seems to me I heard she worked in a tea-room for a while over on MacDougall street. Probably she needed by going back to her home town. That's what the weak ones generally do."

"That was it, wasn't it! She was weak."

"Oh, yes. It's no place here for that sort." Bee was just tired enough to put a little nervous force into that speech.

"No, of course not," said Delia.

"The people that last in New York seem to have something—talent, courage—something. They have to. Something to give. You can't just take New York. You have to bring something to it if you're to hold your head up. It's no place for a timid little sentimentalist. I suppose what it comes down to is you've got to be a good sport."

"Yes, that's it, isn't it!" said Delia, with an odd, abrupt intensity. She was braiding her pale hair, and looking down at it as her slender fingers twisted the strands together. "That's just the modern quality—being a good sport. I've been wondering whether you were quite—well, quite fair in what you said about Arthur Rockwell."

"Perhaps not."

"I mean whether he could have gone on with her after he'd found out she had nothing real to give him. Wouldn't it be honester, if that was the case—even better—not to go on? Mightn't it have been that his poet nature idealized her at first, and—"

"It might have." There was a dry note in Bee's voice. But Delia standing with puckered brows, was too intent on her own thoughts to be aware of it.

"After all, Bee dear, he is a poet. He lives in a dream world. Wouldn't he have to be understood?" Naively she emphasized those words, much as a girl underscores in writing a letter.

"Oh, yes."

"You can't help thinking about that girl. Mightn't it be that neither of them was really to balme?"

"Oh, certainly."

"After all, what could he have done to her? I mean, if they'd tried it, and it didn't—well, just didn't work out. You could hardly insist that he marry her."

"Make an honest woman of her?" Bee laughed shortly as she uttered the phrase which perhaps more than any other typified the popular Village ridicule of conventional morality.

"Yes, that's what I mean. That wouldn't be—well, modern, would it." This wasn't a question.

"It wouldn't be even intelligent. And now, dear, if you don't mind, I'm going to bed. I feel like a ruin without even ivy to grace it."

She was moving away when Delia spoke again: "Oh, Bee!"

"Yes?"

Lou had come along the hall and was moving about in the bedroom. Delia lowered her voice. "I meant to tell you its been wonderful of you to take me in like this, but—"

"That's nothing, dear. You're perfectly welcome. We love having you."

"But I just couldn't stay on. That wouldn't be right. The fact is, Bee, I've found a room.

"Oh, you have?"

"Yes. That is—" Delia lifted her head and looked straight at her friend. ("She actually wants to tell," thought Bee.) "He—Arthur Rockwell—found it. It's in the house next door to where he is."

Bee stood motionless. What could she say? What did this blundering, pathetic child imagine she could say? Briskly, then, she changed the subject. "Oh, Delia, I plumb forgot." Again that short little laugh. "There's been so much going on tonight I'm afraid I've lost track of everything except myself. I think I've got you a job."

"Really, Bee? How wonderful!" But Delia's thoughts were not on jobs.

"You're to see a Mr. Lane in the morning. I have the address in my bag. And I'd be fairly prompt. By ten, anyway.

Delia's gaze dropped to the floor, then sought again the now frankly yawning Bee. "Do you think—you see, this is Friday, and I thought I might be away over Sunday."

There was nothing one could say to a girl with that hopelessly unreal look on her face. Thinking wierily of what her effort to find that job had cost her, Bee turned away.

"Oh, I imagine they could wait until Monday," she said. 'But just the same, I'd see this Mr. Lane in the morning."

"Oh, I will! Of course, Bee! And thank you ever so much for all your kindness!"

In the bedroom Bee laughed once more in that nervous way, but silently. So Delia's cap was over the windmill! And Arthur, of all men! She was fairly rushing into it. Moth and flame stuff! It was odd that the revolation should come as a bit of a shock; and odder yet that it should stir in her breast a touch of dread uncomfortably like what she would have termed, in another, a conservative reaction. But then with a shrug she tumbled into bed and went healthily to sleep.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

DELIA had come in, and was quietly undressing in the bed-room. Bee made up the couch for her. Then Lou left them together. They spoke only of surface things, casually—whether there were covers enough. Bee got a steamer rug from the closet.

Finally Delia spoke, hesitatingly: "You spoke about that girl, Bee. The one that was in love with Arthur—Rockwell." She hesitated over the first name; and then, as if it were a rather hasty afterthought, added the surname. Her voice was low and uncertain. "I was wondering a little—you said she just drifted out. Doesn't anybody know what became of her?"

"Oh, I don't know." Bee was holding a pillow-slip in her teeth and crowding one of the soft-cushions into it. "It seems to me I heard she worked in a tea-room for a while over on MacDougall street. Probably she needed by going back to her home town. That's what the weak ones generally do."

"That was it, wasn't it! She was weak."

"Oh, yes. It's no place here for that sort." Bee was just tired enough to put a little nervous force into that speech.

"No, of course not," said Delia.

"The people that last in New York seem to have something—talent, courage—something. They have to. Something to give. You can't just take New York. You have to bring something to it if you're to hold your head up. It's no place for a timid little sentimentalist. I suppose what it comes down to is you've got to be a good sport."

"Yes, that's it, isn't it!" said Delia, with an odd, abrupt intensity. She was braiding her pale hair, and looking down at it as her slender fingers twisted the strands together. "That's just the modern quality—being a good sport. I've been wondering whether you were quite—well, quite fair in what you said about Arthur Rockwell."

"Perhaps not."

"I mean whether he could have gone on with her after he'd found out she had nothing real to give him. Wouldn't it be honester, if that was the case—even better—not to go on? Mightn't it have been that his poet nature idealized her at first, and—"

"It might have." There was a dry note in Bee's voice. But Delia standing with puckered brows, was too intent on her own thoughts to be aware of it.

"After all, Bee dear, he is a poet. He lives in a dream world. Wouldn't he have to be understood?" Naively she emphasized those words, much as a girl underscores in writing a letter.

"Oh, yes."

"You can't help thinking about that girl. Mightn't it be that neither of them was really to balme?"

"Oh, certainly."

"After all, what could he have done to her? I mean, if they'd tried it, and it didn't—well, just didn't work out. You could hardly insist that he marry her."

"Make an honest woman of her?" Bee laughed shortly as she uttered the phrase which perhaps more than any other typified the popular Village ridicule of conventional morality.

"Yes, that's what I mean. That wouldn't be—well, modern, would it." This wasn't a question.

"It wouldn't be even intelligent. And now, dear, if you don't mind, I'm going to bed. I feel like a ruin without even ivy to grace it."

She was moving away when Delia spoke again: "Oh, Bee!"

"Yes?"

Lou had come along the hall and was moving about in the bedroom. Delia lowered her voice. "I meant to tell you its been wonderful of you to take me in like this, but—"

"That's nothing, dear. You're perfectly welcome. We love having you."

"But I just couldn't stay on. That wouldn't be right. The fact is, Bee, I've found a room.

"Oh, you have?"

"Yes. That is—" Delia lifted her head and looked straight at her friend. ("She actually wants to tell," thought Bee.) "He—Arthur Rockwell—found it. It's in the house next door to where he is."

Bee stood motionless. What could she say? What did this blundering, pathetic child imagine she could say? Briskly, then, she changed the subject. "Oh, Delia, I plumb forgot." Again that short little laugh. "There's been so much going on tonight I'm afraid I've lost track of everything except myself. I think I've got you a job."

"Really, Bee? How wonderful!" But Delia's thoughts were not on jobs.

"You're to see a Mr. Lane in the morning. I have the address in my bag. And I'd be fairly prompt. By ten, anyway.

Delia's gaze dropped to the floor, then sought again the now frankly yawning Bee. "Do you think—you see, this is Friday, and I thought I might be away over Sunday."

There was nothing one could say to a girl with that hopelessly unreal look on her face. Thinking werily of what her effort to find that job had cost her, Bee turned away.

"Oh, I imagine they could wait until Monday," she said. 'But just the same, I'd see this Mr. Lane in the morning."

"Oh, I will! Of course, Bee! And thank you ever so much for all your kindness!"

In the bedroom Bee laughed once more in that nervous way, but silently. So Delia's cap was over the windmill! And Arthur, of all men! She was fairly rushing into it. Moth and flame stuff! It was odd that the revelation should come as a bit of a shock; and odder yet that it should stir in her breast a touch of dread uncomfortably like what she would have termed, in another, a conservative reaction. But then with a shrug she tumbled into bed and went healthily to sleep.

Iron From Electricity.
Two Divorces, No More?
For Swivel Chair Experts.
Coming, $25 a Day.

By ARTHUR BRISBANE

(The opinions expressed in this column are strictly those of Mr. Brisbane and not necessarily in consonance with the policies of The Review-Tribune.)

Copyright, 1926, by the Star Co.

IN THIS INDUSTRIAL age, an announcement by the engineering foundation that iron may be produced from ore by electricity is ten thousand times more important than any news about art, literature or politics.

Melting ore and making iron with fire may soon be part of the primitive past, if engineers are not mistaken.

Iron produced electrically would be less subject to rust, and that alone would prevent an annual loss of 20,000,000 tons of steel that goes to waste through corrosion.

The Pacific coast is interested in this. No more coal mines or coal hauling necessary in steel plants. That great mountain of iron near Mexico City, or cheap, high grade iron ore, brought through the canal from Cuba, and combined with the abundant, cheap electric power of the coast, would compete advantageously with Pittsburgh and Gary.

Steel men know that their industry is still primitive. They are not as self-satisfied as Britishers at the convention of steel men, who voted to erase from their records a certain proposition, that they might not be made ridiculous. What they erased was a proposition to make steel by the Bessemer process.

Electricity may do for steel production more than was done by that Bessemer process.

Central Press Photos

While a reward of more than $27,000 offered by newspapers of the city and state and local friends spurs on searchers for the slayers of Don R. Mellett, publisher of the Canton News, the murder is being used to stir the citizens against the laxity and even timidity shown by Canton, Stark county and state officials in dealing with the underworld characters and bootlegging fraternity believed to be behind the killing. Mellett, through his paper, had waged relentless warfare against the vice law violators and lax officials. Mellett was shot down as he closed the doors of his garage after returning home at night with his wife. The photos show the garage, with the one door still unclosed, the Mellett house adjoining it and the Mellett children, left to right, Betty, Louise, Margaret, Gene and Evans.

REWARD IS BAIT

Civic Clubs Aid in Hunt for Killers of Mellett.

CANTON, July 19.—The reward of more than $26,085, offered by citizens and organizations out to avenge Don R. Mellett's death and wipe out conditions which made the murder possible, has brought fruit.

Information which may be of importance has been turned in.

This was the announcement today of Ora Slater, brilliant Cincinnati detective, who solved the famous mystery death of Mrs. Frances Drake Nesbitt at Troy, Ohio, last spring.

"I have received a number of tips and leads," Slater said. "Just what they are worth still remains to be seen, but it is probable at least some of them may lead us to the slayers. I am making no promises but I do say we may strike 'pay dirt' any minute."

"The most promising feature about the cause," said Slater, "is the certainty that there are others besides

SHERIFF WRIGHT WRECKS SECOND 'HELL'S HALF ACRE,' AT WALKER'S, OVERLOOKING RIVER, AND NABS TWO OFFENDERS ON WAY BACK HOME

Sheriff George Wright, who has been active in the tripartite city, county and Pennsylvania campaign against the wooded rendezvous of bootleggers near the state line, struck early Sunday morning against a second "Hell's Half Acre," in a raid on a camp located on the old Walker sewer pipe works, overlooking the Ohio river between East Liverpool and Wellsville.

As a result of the visit of the sheriff, who was accompanied by Deputy James Elliott and Cleveland and Pittsburgh Railroad Detective H. K. Leyda, of Wellsville, the camp was wrecked and the habitues warned their supposedly illicit operations would not be permitted.

"Fold your tents and get out," a sleepy-eyed camp attendant was told by Sheriff Wright. "We're coming back again."

A small tent was the only shelter in the camp. There were two folding cots within it. One of these was broken. There was no bed clothing. An old coat served as a pillow for one of the attendants, while another was wrapped in a horse blanket.

When Sheriff Wright drove up to the sign of the camp, which was a white-washed sewer pipe on a path on the southside of the traction line, one of two young men sang out, "hey! that you?"

None of the raiding party answered. The lookout walked west on the traction right of way to the camp entrance. As he was under the influence of liquor, he was arrested. There was nothing on his person. Warned to make no outcry, he was left in the custody of Deputy Elliott.

Down the path, which followed a tortuous course through the thick brush, the raiders traveled. No light were used until the camp site had been reached. The first flash of a light revealed two young men asleep upon the bare ground. Within the tent two other sleepers. Two dirt-smeared planks extending from two 24-inch sewer pipes served as a table. Several gallon glass bottles were on the table and the ground. One contained water and another was partly filled with kerosene.

For more than an hour a search of the camp was made, even the rough river bank being combed. Lines of drain tile had been laid about the camp and these had been whitewashed. Many pieces of tile were pulled away in the search for a liquor cache, but none was found. In a corner of the tent was a chip basket, and his held several hundred metal bottle caps. Nearby was a muslin bag about three-quarters full of corks for half-pint bottles.

The three camp visiters began the long walk to East Liverpool, after complying with order to "pull stakes."

As the raiders were returning to Lisbon, Sheriff Wright and Deputy Elliott arrested Frank McBride, of East Palestine, and C. H. Davis, of East Liverpool, at a point near Spence's Corners, following the discovery of a car parked on the east side of the road headed south, with all lights burning, and two cars parked on the other side of the highway, headed south. Several men were seen on the other side of the highway.

Just as Sheriff Wright stepped from his automobile, there was heard the sound of a bottle dropping on the west embankment of the highway.

Sheriff Wright, investigating, found a half pint bottle of corn liquor.

Davis, who was charged with disorderly conduct and was fined $10 and costs by Justice M. K. Zimerman, of Lisbon. McBride was fined $10 and costs for parking his car on the wrong side of the road.

LAUNCH WAR ON SPEEDERS

15 Arrests are Made by Police Over Week-end.

War on speeders who use Wells avenue and Lisbon street for a race course was launched Sunday by Mayor W. L. Fogo and police when approximately 15 alleged violators were nabbed on traffic charges.

The majority of the arrests were made on charges of speeding, and several on other counts, including running around street cars stopped to discharge and take on passengers.

Two license numbers were turned in after a couple of machines had raced a dead heat down the middle of the street; others were "just speeding."

Authorities today began to call in the alleged offenders and hearings will be held today and tomorrow.

"I expect to fine them," announced Mayor Fogo in commenting on police efforts to stop speeding and reckless driving over the improved road.

The chief executive points out the facts that mill employes who must get on and off cars at Mill street and children going and coming from the mill playground at the bridge are endangered by careless drivers.

As a result of the week-end exhibition of speed it is likely that a 15-mile an hour limit will be established in Wells avenue and Lisbon street.

Conquers Bad Breadth and is Popular Again

"The day I started taking Carter's Little Liver Pills," says Mr. John A. Perry of New York City, "my habitual bad breath and bad stomach stopped. I strongly recommend them to all those afflicted with these nasty troubles. I assure you that my own case was a bad one, causing me untold embarrassment, and Carter's helped me right from the start."

Bad breath comes from sour stomach and can usually be relieved quickly by Carter's Little Liver Pills.

BARNES QUITS POLICE POST

Resignation is Accepted by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

Listing nine reasons for quitting his job, charging lack of harmony in the police department, "orders from Acting Chief Newton just to arrest certain ones," and that "things are loose and it is no use to bring them in," Patrolman James Barnes, son of the late Mayor J. S. Barnes, last night tendered his resignation to Mayor W. L. Fogo.

The resignation was promptly accepted by the mayor who asserts that Barnes' charges constitute a mis-statement, inasmuch as all police have been ordered to bring in everything and to operate as efficiently as possible.

Barnes has been patrolling a regular beat here since the murder of James Kenney, firemen, who, at the time of his death was acting as a substitute officer.

Barnes had been in the fire station during the administration of his father and had served as special officer on different occasions. He took Kenney's place in the fire station last fall during the Republican primary election and had been employed there until called for police duty this spring.

The letter of resignation follows:

"Mr. Wallace L. Fogo,

"Sir:—

"Please accept my resignation to take effect at once. My reasons are as follows:

"First: On account of the way the case was handled when Brother Kenney was killed; second: When a bootlegger is brought in he is turned loose—the last one was Ben Travers, that one that testified in the Fultz case; third: That things are loose and it is no use to bring them in; fourth: When some are brought in, in many cases they are turned loose with the promise to pay; fifth: That we have orders from Acting Chief Newton to just arrest certain ones; sixth: We have had no police head to work under since Fultz was suspended; seventh: There is no working in harmony with each other; eighth: The public expects service from the police department which they are entitled to, but under the conditions that Acting Chief Newton and the mayor expect you to work, you cannot render it; ninth: There is more gambling and bootlegging in town than ever and it cannot be suppressed under existing conditions.

"J. E. Barnes, Patrolman."

Port Homer Plant Suspends as Employes Walk Out.

Production at the western plant of the American Vitrified Products company, near Port Homer, was shut down Saturday afternoon when workmen at the plant refused a proposal for a wage reduction of 15 cents an hour and a change from a nine to an eight-hour working day.

The old scale was 60 cents an hour for nine hours. The men were asked to accept a 45-cents an hour scale for eight hours.

The Forest City, another plant of the American Vitrified company, has not been in operation.

Robert Russell, Akron, superintendent of the company, made the proposal to the men Saturday, calling for the reduction, which he said, existed in other fields. The employes voted to refuse the offer and left work at the end of the last shift Saturday afternoon.

Kilns now filled are to be burned, loading is to go on, and general repairs are to be made at the plant, but production will cease until a compromise is reached.

NO DATE IS SET FOR HURD CASE

Pending a report from the state civil service commission on the result of their investigation of Wellsville civil service procedure, no date has been determined upon for the hearing of Harry F. Hurd, former patrolman, on charges filed by Mayor W. L. Fogo.

In all probability, local civil service commission representatives announce the hearing will get under way the first of next week.

The trial originally was scheduled to start tonight but was deferred as a result of the visit Friday of representatives of the state civil service commission and the attorney general's office at Columbus who consulted with principals in the police hearing, as well as city officials and members of the civil service commission.

Unless unforseen occurrences develop, it is possible that the hearing will start next Monday night.

They are scheduled for a hearing this evening before Mayor W. L. Fogo.

Weirton Steel Company Begins Work on Strip Mill.

Ground has been broken and contractors are at work laying the foundations for the $5,000,000 strip sheet mill of the Weirton Steel company, another gigantic unit in their $15,000,000 expansion program for 1926 and 1927.

The new plant, which is the seventh of the Weirton Steel company, is to be located between Lee avenue on the south and the strip steel plant on the north, bordered on the east by the Pennsylvania railroad tracks and the Phelps Can company and on the west by East street. It extends across Ferguson avenue, which will be closed at East street.

The construction work will continue until March, 1927, before the plant is ready for operation. After the foundations have been laid hundreds of men will be employed in the structural steel construction. The plant when completed will be more modern in every detail, the buildings to be constucted of steel and brick. When in operation it will afford steady employment to hundreds of laborers and skilled workmen.

As described by C. H. Hunt, chief engineer of the steel company, the new plant will consist of a hot mill with eight stands of horizontal rolls and three edging rolls, served by four continuous furnaces. The entire plant will be motor driven.

The furnaces will be located in a building 80x150 feet with a slab yard adjacent being 100x400 feet long. The hot mills will be at one end of a building 84x1,110 feet with a pickling department parallel. The cold mill building will be 100x500 feet with an annealing room 100x500 feet parallel with it. The shipping department will be parallel with and adjacent to the Pennsylvania railroad tracks in a building 100x500 feet. The receiving power will be generated at the main power station in the steel works where additions to the boiler and power plants are being made.

The completetion of this plant will see the steel company with a strip steel, tin mill, blast furnace, steel mill, coke plant and strip sheet plants. The next plant to be added to the properties will probably be a tube mill, although there has been no official announcement to this effect.

DR. W. B. CALDWELL AT THE AGE OF 83

Old Folks Need a Mild Laxative —Not a "Physic"

Most men and women past fifty must give to the bowels some occasional help else they suffer from constipation. One might as well refuse to aid weak eyes with glasses as to neglect a gentle aid to weak bowels.

Is your present laxative in whatever form, promoting natural bowel "regularity"—or must you purge and "physic" every day or two to avoid sick headache, dizziness, biliousness, colds, or sour, gassy stomach?

Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin helps to establish natural regular bowel movement even for these chronically constipated. It never gripes, sickens or upsets the system. Besides, it is absolutely harmless and pleasant to take.

Buy a large 60-cent bottle at any store that sells medicine and just see for yourself.

FOUR SEEK PLACE IN STATE SENATE

The fight for the state senatorship from this district, which includes Ohio, Brooke and Hancock counties, looms up as a spirited contest with five men seeking the honor.

Wright Hugus, Wheeling, present incumbent, is opposed for renomination on the Republican ticket by George C. Benke and George M. Miller, both of Wheeling, seek the Democratic nomination at the August 3 primaries.

The senator this term comes from Ohio county by a political agreement that has been in effect for many years. The successful candidate will represent this district with W. S. Wilkin, Wellsburg, who has two more years of a four-year term to serve.

At the next presidential election the senator will be selected from Hancock county. Brooke and Hancock county alternate every four years in sending a man to the higher branch of the state legislature.

Reigns as Beauty Queen in Sicily

The Baroness d'Agala of Catania, descendant of the Spanish monarch who invaded Sicily in the 16th century, is said to be the loveliest of all the present-day Sicilian women. She is well known in the Italian court and in aristocratic circles in London, Paris and on the Riviera.

BROOKE ROADS BEING IMPROVED

The county highway department will improve the highway between Follansbee and Eldersville. The road is getting rough in several places and these holes will be filled with slag and covered with tar. The curves will be widened and where the road passes along a hollow or depression a fence will be erected and painted white so it may easily be seen at night.

White lines will be painted along the highway dividing the road into separate parts and making automobile traffic more safe.

Brooke county is improving its roads this year and Follansbee is getting good roads on all sides. The completion of the Wellsburg-Follansbee road and the continuation of that road through to Wheeling makes it a fine gateway to the Old National road.

CODY FAMILY STUDIES IDEAS FOR 'BUFFALO BILL' MEMORIAL

CLEVELAND. — Immortalization of the memory of the late Colonel William Cody, beloved of the youth of the nation under the guise of "Buffalo Bill" through some fitting memorial is the hope and ambition of the late scout's family, who met in Cleveland for their annual reunion.

Undecided whether the memorial should be in the form of a museum or garage the forty members of the Cody clan selected a committee headed by Mrs. Mary Chester Allen of New York to prepare plans.

Three possible cities have been selected as sites for the memorial. They are Denver, Omaha and Cody, Wyoming.

Many interesting sidelights of the character of the late "redskin fighter" were revealed at the reunion by his only surviving near relative, Mrs. Julia Cody Goodman, 83, his sister.

"My brother," and the frail woman's voice swelled with pride, "was a real builder. He was in turn justice-of-peace and legislator in Nebraska, where he settled after teaching Grand Duke Alexis how to shoot buffalo. There he built the Cody canal of 50 miles to his 400 acre farm at North Platte."

Harry B. Cody of Cleveland, was selected president of the clan for 1927; and Luther M. Cody, of Beverly, Mass., was selected to compile a genealogy of the Lad Codies, which was the name of the first Cody to land in this country at the time of the immigration of the Huguenots from France.

Price on Heads of Assassins

Ohio newspapers, a unit today as they always have been in the war against vice and the demand for law enforcement, and individuals have offered rewards totalling more than $27,000. for the arrest and conviction of the slayers of Don R. Mellett, the crusading publisher of the Canton News, who was shot to death by underworld hirelings.

One thousand dollars of this sum has been posted by the Brush-Moore newspapers, including the East Liverpool Review-Tribune.

Every nook and corner of gangland in Canton will be combed, as it should be, for the assassins who struck in the dark at a man who, despite repeated warnings from friends and threats from the vice ring, battled for a public cause in the Stark county metropolis.

Don R. Mellett's death is corroborative evidence of the truth of all he said in his campaign against organized bootleggers, dope peddlers and other criminals whom he sought to drive from their lair. And because he had the courage to expose conditions existing in his adopted city he was marked by desperate characters who do not stop at exacting human life in their efforts to accomplish their nefarious purposes.

The fighting editor's assassination is a blot on the name of the city of Canton, but he shall not have died in vain if the law enforcement officers of the Stark county city rid their community of the profiteers of vice who challenge the freedom of the press and wreak vengeance upon those who dare to oppose them.

A Baffled Dictator

Pity Pilsukski, dictator of Poland. Having seized the supreme power, he doesn't know what to do with it. For he is a soldier, not a ruler. All his experience has been military. He is probably too old a bird to learn politics now, and hasn't time for lessons. Things move too fast.

In a world too much given to dictatorships in these latter years, perhaps such an example was needed to make political dictation ridiculous instead of dignified and worshipful. A dictatorship depends on the dictator, more than on any other factor. Here is notice to every would-be Napoleon or Caesar to consider well his own strength and qualifications before indulging in any coup d'etat and making himself personally responsible for his country's government and welfare.

It takes a very exceptional man to be a whole government and generals, anyway, usually make poor civil leaders, lacking the civilian viewpoint.

There is danger in Pilsudski, even in his political weakness. For realizing that his personal strength is military, he seems to be trying to set the Polish stage for another war, in which he might win fresh laurels. That is the eternal way of the soldier. Heaven grant that the people of Poland have enough sense to see that what they need is not wars, but statesmanship.

Seadromes

If the plans of Howard R. Armstrong, chief of the mechanical experimental development division of the E. L. DuPont De Nemours company, of Wilmington, Del., prove workable, the Atlantic ocean, and possibly other oceans, will some day be dotted with great "seadromes."

A seadrome, according to this engineer, will be a 100-acre or more, floating, anchored, landing field upon which planes may stop for repairs or refueling. He believes that such mid-ocean stopping places are necessary if speed and carrying capacity are to be achieved in future airplane development. If long distance is the aim in aviation, the other two features will have to be sacrificed and ocean stopping places will not be needed.

The seadromes he proposes will cover approximately 111 acres, having a displacement of many thousand tons, 97 per cent of which will be below the line of wave disturbance. Hotels, fuel storage tanks, food, machine shops and meteorological bureaus can be located on them. The result will be 30-hour transportation service between Atlantic City, N. J., and Plymouth, England.

These seadromes may be useful, necessary and possible things, in which case they will probably become established facts. Nevertheless, let's not have too many of them, or there won't be any ocean left at all.

From the income tax collections, evidently people are so glad their taxes were reduced that they're paying more just out of gratitude.

A college professor finds that prison convicts are more eager to study than college students. Maybe that's because they're not overworked like students.

High Spots in The Life of Little Stanley—Great Explorer— By F. Fox

NEW YORK DAYBYDAY

By O. O. McINTYRE

NEW YORK, July 19.—Diary of a modern Pepys: Awakened early by F. Ziegfeld phoning and he related a gay story almost compensating for stirring me out of sound sleep. And then with A. Keller, the inn keeper, to see his Chinese porcelains, very engaging.

Home and rang up Roy Moulton, the humorist, and a British voice said "He's in the bawth, sir!" and I said "Well get him out of it. This isn't Saturday night," which I thought a middling fair retort. So at my labours and with no little zest.

In the evening with my wife to dine at a roof garden high over the city and it came upon me she was the fairest lady there, among much beauty, too, and I told her so and saw it pleased her mightily. And Theodore, the head waiter, must have thought likewise for he gave her a red rose. So home late.

As rents soar in the Broadway area, stores shrink, There are a half hundred holes in the wall in the Rialto district that prosper despite the amazing tariff. An orange drink stand with four-foot frontage in Times Square pays a yearly rental of $9,000.

Across the way the same firm pays $14,000 a year for a stand that has eight feet on Seventh avenue and 12 feet on 42d street. Out of such stands in crowded centers the company operating them is reported to have garnered millions in the past few years.

Small stores are sliced into cubicles and the building owner's income is almost tripled. A pie-shaped jewelry shop on Seventh avenue that may accommodate only two customers and a salesman is said to pay $50,000 annually in rent.

A shop on 52d street and Fifth avenue, occupying 32 square feet of space, rented some time ago for $65,000 a year. The renter failed and the space was cut into three shops and the rental price went up to $100,000.

For those who sell women's wear, West 42d street is considered the most populous and concentrated market in the world with the greatest buying power. And, of course, rents are enormous. For those who sell popular priced stuff to men, Nassau street is considered best for display. More men pass through Nassau street in a day than anywhere else in the world. Most of them are merely strolling after lunch and are likely to be in a buying mood.

It is not as easy to rent a store or shop in New York as might be imagined. One month's rent in advance is not sufficient. The prospective tenant must convince the building owner he is able to successfully carry on a business. A store that fails gives the building a "black eye" for the next tenant and several failures will surround it with a hoodoo that may prove disastrous. Too, when a store flourishes, the landlord does not feel a hesitancy in boosting rent at expiration of the lease.

The lure of a window display in crowded sections is astonishing. The most concrete evidence of this was in a souvenir shop with one window on Broadway. It was "bricked" late one night. For two days there was no window display. Daily receipts averaged $175 a day. During the two days a new plate glass was being installed the receipts fell below $20 a day. The first day the window display was restored the receipts mounted to the daily average figure.

Without window displays in New York I doubt that few of us would spend money for anything outside of bare necessities.

THE PRUDENT MR. FINNERTY

The lawyer picked his way to the edge of the excavation for the new terminal station and called down for Michael Finnerty.

"Who's wantin' me?"inquired a deep voice.

"I am," said the lawyer. "Mr. Finnerty, did you come from Castlebar, County Mayo?"

"I did."

And was your mother named Mary and your father named Owen?"

"They was."

"Then Mr. Finnerty," said the lawyer, "it is my duty to inform you that your Aunt Kate has died in the old country, leaving you an estate of twenty thousand dollars in cash. Please come on up."

There was a pause and a commotion down below.

"Mr. Finnerty," called the lawyer, craning his neck over the trench, "I'm waiting for you!"

"In wan minute," said Mr Finnerty. "I just stopped to lick the foreman!"

For six months Mr. Finnerty, in a high hat and with patent leather shoes on his feet, lived a life of elegant ease, trying to cure himself of a great thirst. Then he went back to his old job. It was there in the same excavation that the lawyer found him the second time.

"Mr. Finnerty," he said, "I've more news for you. It is your Uncle Terence who's dead now in the old country and he has left you his entire property."

"I don't think I can take it," said Mr. Finnerty, leaning wearily on his pick. I'm not as strong as I wance was; and I'm doubtin' if I could go through all that again and live!"

U. S. Ship Masters Have No Right to Perform Weddings

WASHINGTON, July 19.—Many couples who have been married on the high seas by the skippers of government vessels may have to have the knot tied all over again just to be safe.

In instructing the masters of all government ships to discontinue the practice of performing marriage ceremonies, the general counsel of the shipping board said: "The master of a merchant vessel of the United States has no authority to perform the marriage ceremony."

The point was cited that there is no national marriage law in the United States, and that the masters of government vessels are in reality mere government employes.

No opinion was expressed as to the validity of the marriages already performed, nor concerning the right of masters of private vessels to perform the ceremonies.

HASKIN'S LETTER

By FREDERIC J. HASKIN

Cooperative Fish Culture.

WASHINGTON, D. C., July 19.—Unable to keep pace with the fishermen of the nation in their demand for game fish, especially trout and bass, the United States Bureau of Fisheries has sent out a call for private help in the hatching and raising of young fish to stock the streams of the country. The hatchery stationery of the Bureau are all operating to their limit, and they can not plant the young fingerlings fast enough to keep the streams stocked for the sportsmen. The Bureau is therefore appealing to every fish and game club or private owner of a stream, lake or parts thereof, to get in the fish culture game along with the Government, and help keep the streams stocked.

The Bureau of Fisheries has plenty of fish eggs every year, millions of them in fact, but it has not enough ponds or lakes or other inclosures to raise the young fish to a length at which it is safe to turn them loose. The Bureau experts say it is no use to hatch a million trout and turn them loose the next day or next week, as they will simply be devoured by other fish. If they can be raised to a length of three or four inches they are nimble and strongh enough to take pretty good care of themselves, and many of they will grow up.

The principal requirement for the culture of game fish, especially trout, is fresh water which is under control so that the very young fish can be kept safely. Any small stream can be impounded into a lake, or several lakes or ponds, and some of course are more easily handled than others. The Bureau will furnish the eggs or the very young fish, if somebody who has a stream or lake or pond will furnish the fresh water under proper control, and a little food. The Bureau will also furnish supervision and advice, and when the brood or flock or covey of young fish is raised to fingerling length, the Government will split the lot on a 50-50 basis with the party furnishing the water.

This arrangements means that a fishing club which has been appealing to the government for 10,000 trout a year for its stream, and getting only 500, can have 20,000 if it will impound some suitable water and raise the young which the Government can supply. The government can give the club 40,000 trout just hatched, but it can give only 500 fingerlings. If the club will raise the 40,000 it can keep half of them for its own stream, and the remainder will be planted by the government in near-by waters.

This scheme solves two of the Bureau of Fisheries' problems, the lack of lackes or ponds, and the limited transportation facilities available for the larger fish. If sporting clubs respond in sufficient numbers to this offer of cooperation, the government experts have hopes that the game fish supply of the country may be materially increased, and that better sport may be available for the hordes of fishermen who annually go forth full of hope and too often come home full of disappintment.

Automobiles Reduce Supply.

The automobile has been the greatest modern factor in reducing the reducing the game fish supply of the United States, in the opinion of the Bureau of Fisheries' experts. The once distant streams which were seldom fished, are now brought close to hand for the motorist, and there is scarcely a waterway in the land which is not visited by many fishermen each season. The game laws have been made more strict in many states, and state fish hatcheries have been added to the string of federal stations, and still the supply fails to keep up with the demand. Were it not for the constant work of these hatcheries there would scarcely be a trout left in the country, and the situation of the bass is not much better.

The Government needs help in bass culture even more than in trout culture, because bass can not be treated like trout and caught and stripped of their eggs for hatchery use. The culture of trout, like that of salmon, consists of catching the female in the spawning season, stripping her of her eggs, fertilizing these with the milt of the male trout, and hatching them in troughs of running water. Thus a great output of young trout is possible

The bass does not yield to this sort of treatment, and can only be cultivated by providing natural spawning grounds and protecting them. The black bass provides a nest, usually of fine gravel, for its eggs, which after being deposited by the female and fertilized by the male, are protected by the female fish, which stands over them, washing them gently by the swish of the fins and keeping enemies away. The young bass are also protected for some days, and led to their first feeding grounds before being turned loose in the world.

The propagation of bass therefore calls for carefully impounded waters in which they may spawn and rear the young, and then for segregation of the young from the older fish, or else liberal feeding of the old ones, because, despite all its care for its young the bass is a natural born cannibal, and will eat its own kind if other food fails. Bass are also rather fussy about what they eat, as any fisherman knows who has sought to tempt them with various kinds of bait. Minnows and other small living creatures of the streams are their preference.

One Club's Success

The Bureau of Fisheries has tried out the cooperative fish culture plan with several game clubs and has found it quite practical. One club in Missouri is now getting about 700,000 rainbow trout eggs each year, and with government aid is hatching them and keeping half of the fingerlings for its own streams, the remainder being distributed by the government. Not all of the fingerlings mature, but enough of them do so to improve materially the fishing in those parts.

Each proposed new breeding ground for game fish offers its own problems, and the government's experts are willing to investigate all offers of cooperation as rapidly as possible and to enter into agreements for co-operative culture wherever practical. Game clubs which are always asking Congress for more money for the Bureau of Fisheries work thus have an opportunity to increase the output of game fish by their own efferos, even if congress insists on keeping a limit on federal expenditures for this purpose. Thus the sportsmen of the land need not depend upon President Coolidge's recently much exploited interest in fishing as the only source for more government help in getting more game fish planted in our streams.

Ponds or lakes from one acre in extent upwards are probable spots for fish culture, and most streams at some place along their courses offer opportunities for the creation of artificial ponds at very list cost. The larger the impounded water, the more natural food it will offer for fish, and the less care will be involved in that respect. Larger ponds of 15 to 25 acres offer opportunities for more varied effort, and it is possible to raise various sorts of bass, carp, bream and other game fish in them. A 10-acre pond is considered adequate to raise 100,000 young bass in a season, and trout require less area. With the possibilities of cooperative culture in mind, the Government experts are optimistic about the future of game fish in this country, despite the rapid increase in fishing throughout the length and breadth of the land.

The accident was witnessed by Mrs. Leona Standley, Waterloo street, grandmother of the child, who was seated on the front porch of the Longnecker home, and Mrs. Floyd Liske, Lincoln, Ill., an aunt. Leetonia Accident.

The Leetonia accident occurred as the four motorists were on their way home after attending a dance in Lisbon. The car, said to have been traveling rapidly, sideswiped the automobile which was in charge of Cecil Jordan, of Columbiana, who was returning from Greenville, Pa., where he is employed. A woman accompanied Jordan.

The Marks car left the road, hurtled an open drain, vaulted to the top of an embankment, jumped 30 feet, took a nose dive and overturned three times before it came to a stop in a corn field on the Edward Jack farm.

The wrecked car was pulled from the corn field early Sunday morning and taken to East Palestine.

YEGGS ABANDON STOLEN COACH

Dynamite and Burglar Tools Found in Car on Road.

County authorities are seeking the owner of a late model Chevrolet coach, wrecked along the Lincoln highway, north of West Point, at an early hour this morning after it is believed to have been stolen by a band of yeggs.

Underneath the cushion of the rear seat were found several sticks of dynamite, caps, fuses, soap and burglar tools. The license plates had been removed and the motor and serial numbers of the car so battered they could not be read.

According to Sheriff George Wright, who made an investigation, the car was abondoned about 3 o'clock this morning, after it overturned in a ditch alongside the road about midway between West Point and Gilmore's stop on the Y. & O. The machine is believed to have been headed for East Liverpool at the time of the accident.

Blood was spattered over a flashlight and other tools.

The car was painted green with a thin line around the body.

Upon orders from the sheriff, the coach was taken to the Crubaugh garage in Lisbon.

County authorities are not inclined to believe that the abandoned car had any connection with the slayers of Don R. Mellett, Canton newspaper publisher, who was shot by gunmen last Thursday night.

the man who actually committed the murder who knew that it was to be done and who probably knows who did it. This was not the deed of an individual working alone. It probbaly had been talked over. That others had information about it was proved by the telephone warning Mellett received that he would be killed. The person who sent that message knows who killed Mellett and our job now is to locate him and get him to talk."

"I have received a number of tips and leads. Just what they are worth remains to be seen. They may play out as some of the others have done, but on the other hand any one of them may lead to something that will be direct."

Petition Goes to Donahey.

With the meeting of the inter-city council of all the civic clubs of Canton today it was expected that a committee of 100 of the leading business men will be named to work with the county officials and possibly with state and federal officials in prosecuting the search for the slayers of 36-year-old publisher of the Canton News, and in cleaning up the city.

No definite plans have been formulated but it was generally believed that a shake-up in the Canton police department, possibly resulting in the suspension, resignation or dismissal of Chief of Police S. A. Lengel, was imminent.

A petition directed to Governor Vic Donahey and signed by approximately 5,000 church-goers, asking the governor to use every power within the grasp of his office to investigate conditions here and conduct a clean-up of the city was to be forwarded to Columbus today.

Other Detectives on Job.

In the meantime, Detective Slater, placed in command of all the probes of the Mellett case, was conferring with city officials and following up several new clues.

Slater, who was brought here by a group of Ohio newspapers is now working for the county of Stark. At a conference Sunday it was decided that it would be a better policy to have Slater directly in the employ of Prosecutor C. B. McClintock.

The Canton News has employed H. J. Burton, another famous detective, who will cooperate with Slater. In addition, C. H. Sisson, Governor Donahey's special investigator, is said to be here, working independently on the case.

Chief of Police Lengel said today he had questioned closely a number of underworld characters but had been unable to unearth a single tangible clew. He criticized Safety Director Earl Hexamer for not co-operating with the police department.

"I haven't seen Hexamer for two days," Lengel said. "I am going to learn today why I am being passed up in connection with the Mellett probe developments."

Pastor is Threatened.

It developed today that Rev. W. H. Longworth, pastor of the First Congregational church, who some time ago made a fight for a clean-up of the underworld here, had also received death threats.

Longworth kept up his fight for some time but finally gave up because he was fighting alone and failed to receive support from the so-called "better element" of the city.

In his sermon yesterday Rev. Mr. Longworth declared, "Mellett might still be the publisher of the News if the men and women of Canton who know and love the right had come to his aid in the name of common decency and upheld his strong right arm."

The pastors of the city churches made the Mellett murder the subject of their sermons Sunday. They appealed to their congregations for an awakening to the real situation and to action looking for an improvement in the future.

REPORTS FROM STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, July 19.—Speculative interest was largely centered in the motor stocks and high priced industrials in the early trading in the stock market today. Oklahoman Slays Bride of Few Weeks, Then Kills Himself

PUEBLO, Colo., July 19.—Lester Pilkington, formerly of Tulsa, Okla., shot and killed his bride of a few weeks, formerly Miss Mary Smith, of Pawhuska, Okla., and then committed suicide here today. The woman's refusal to give Pilkington their marriage certificate caused the shooting, police said.

PITTSBURGH, July 19. — George Psialias, alias "George the Greek," notorious western Pennsylvania underworld character, wanted for questioning in connection with the murder of Don R. Mellett, Canton, O., publisher, today was taken into custody by police here.

Psialias, according to police, admitted he was in the vicinity of Canton the night of the shooting but denied any knowledge of the crime, other than information obtained through reading the newspapers.

He told police that on the night Mellett was killed he stayed in Warren, O., about 35 miles from Canton.

power, will be as nearly danger proof as is possible now.

With one of the three engines "dead," the plane can continue its journey. If two engines stop, which would happen rarely, the pilot could still travel 20 to 30 miles, depending on his altitude, in search of a safe landing place.

Each plane will carry eight swivel chairs for passengers, and the new Ford plane should make an ideal carrier for about eight of our swivel chair airplane authorities that have held back aviation in this country.

J. L. Garvin, in the London Observer, says Henry Ford killed the Karl Marx theories when he established five dollars a day as a minimum wage. Marx built up his theories from deep looks in the British museum. Ford built his plan in a factory, studying men.

Five dollars a day that you really get, or six dollars, the present Ford minimum, is better than any theory telling how to get the $5 or $6 a day by and by.

But no real problem is solved by a $6 wage. That is only one step toward decent living, and $6 is far from enough.

IT SOUNDS like anarchy, bolshevism and blasphemy to say it, but as general American prosperity has increased, since wages were raised from $1 to $5, so it would improve in proportion if they were raised, as they will be in time, from $5 to $25 a day.

Years hense $125 for a five-day week will not seem strange.

But wages do not settle everything. Men want the incentive of being in business for themselves, the excitement of making more when they do better work. They want freedom from monotony, and they want variety in occupation.

SEVEN DIE AS STORM SWEEPS NEW ENGLAND

Property Toll is Estimated to be $1,000,000.

TERRIFIC WIND

Lightning Causes Havoc in Towns of Massachusetts.

BOSTON, July 19.—Emerging from one of the worst storms in recent years, New England began a checkup today of the havoc wrought by lightning and a 100-mile an hour wind that killed seven persons and took a property toll of approximately $1,000,000.

Lightning bolts claimed four lives.

Two persons were drowned, and one was crushed to death by a falling tree.

Springfield, Mass., was hard hit, damage there alone totaling nearly $500,000.

An awe-inspiring electrical display accompanied the cyclonic winds.

Hailstones fell, trees were uprooted and traffic and communication was disrupted temporarily.

Marie A. Dubois, 19, of Adams, Mass., was killed when she touched the hand of her brother, Alfred, who had been felled by a lightning bolt, and who, strangely enough, was not seriously hurt.

One Dead in Ohio.

COLUMBUS, July 19.—One dead and one seriously injured was the toll today of a series of storms that struck several sections of Ohio Sunday afternoon and evening. In several places leaving losses from winds and heavy rainfall.

Dr. Harvey C. Highman, 31, local dentist, was crushed to death and a fellow camper, Ernest G. Davis, 30, suffered a broken leg when caught by a falling tree as they fled from their camp near Delaware, Ohio. Mrs. Highman and Mrs. Davis escaped, having reached an open clearing. All had been bathing in the Oletangy river. Mrs. Highman ran two miles through the storm to procure aid. Dr. Highman was a native of Woodsfield, Ohio.

Heavy wind caused slight damage to crops in the rural districts near Marietta, Ohio, while a heavy rainfall and severe lightning swept Newark and vicinity according to the weather bureau here.

ZANESVILLE, July 19.—Hail stones as large as walnuts crashed through the tops of automobiles and broke windshields during yesterday afternoon's terrific hail, rain and wind storm. Numerous trees in the city were uprooted, telephone poles were snapped in two, and gardeners suffered thousands of damages from ruined crops. Thousands of acres of sweet corn were shredded by the fail.

In Morgan county, farther down the Muskingum valley, the wind was even stronger, blowing the roof off the baseball grandstand and injuring several people but none seriously. A score or more of silos on Morgan county farms in the vicinity of McConnellsville and Stockport were demolished.

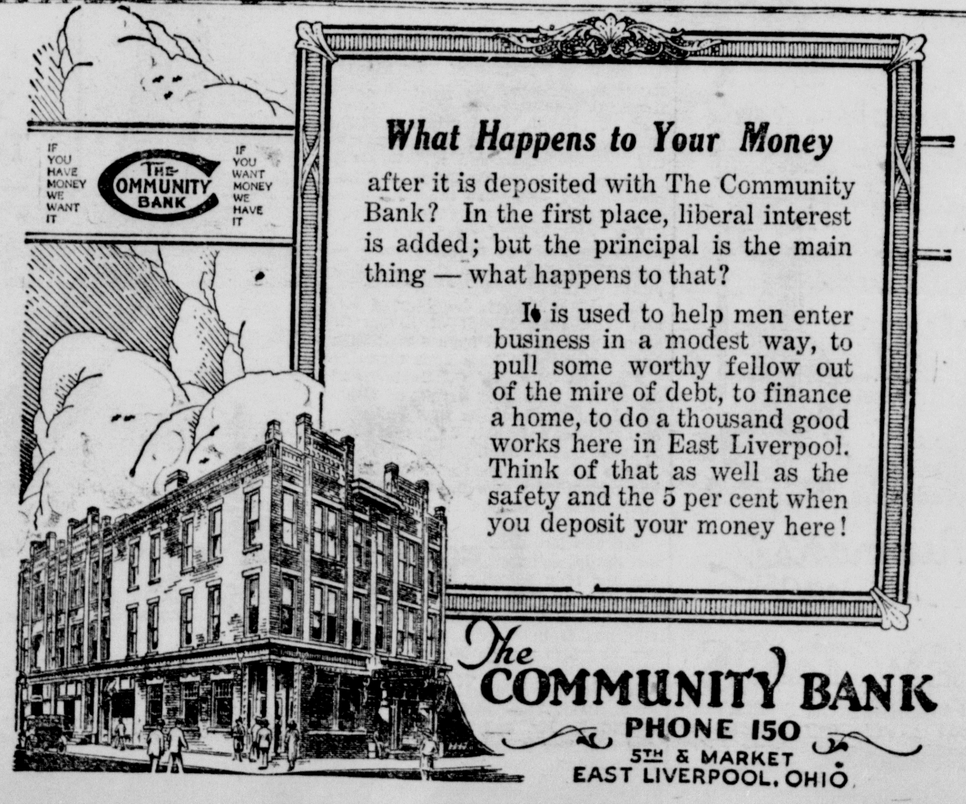

Ride Plane in Storm.

MARIETTA, July 19.—Tales of a thrilling ride aboard a Douglas type of government transport airplane which was caught in a gigantic air pocket between two severe storms and wrecked in a spectacular landing in a cornfield, were told today by seven soldiers under Lieutenant Clifford C. Nutt of New York, who reached Beverley, Ohio, after a night of hardships.

BANDITS KILL MAN IN HOLD-UP

NEWARK, N. J., July 19.—George M. Condit, 70, a messenger for the Reid Ice Cream company, was killed and Joseph Duff, 18, another messenger, was wounded today when four bandits fired on them as they left the company's plant here with $5,000 which they were taking to a bank. The bandits escaped with the money in a limousine, eluding pursuing policemen.

The messengers were in a coupe. Condit pitched from the car and Duff slumped to the sidewalk.

'LADY OF HAREM' AT CERAMIC

Greta Nissen, Ernest Torrence, William Collier in Cast.

A spectacle production filled with stirring action and powerful situations is "The Lady of the Harem," a story of ancient Persia which has just been completed for Paramount by Raoul Walsh, and which arrived at the Ceramic theatre today for a three-day run.

Few productions can compare with "The Lady of the Harem" for beauty of photography, tremendous scenes and thrilling situations, according to those critics who have already viewed the photoplay.

Heroine Taken to Harem.

Because Greta Nissen's father is unable to pay the taxes on his small farm, soldiers of Khorasan seize and carry her to the harem of the oppressive sultan.

Assisted by Ernest Torrence, a kind hearted confectioner, William Collier Jr., attempts to regain her but his efforts prove futile. Desperate, Collier joins a beggar band and assumes its leadership. He swears vengeance on the Sultan.

In another attempt to rescue Miss Nissen, Collier is captured and sentenced to die in the Tomb of Love amid feasting and music. Torrence, however, learns of his friend's fate and hastily summons the beggars to save their leader.

Army Swims River.

How the three thousand rebels brave the treacherous waters of a mighty river, attack the Sultan's army and rescue their leader from a terrible death goes to make a story that stands as one of the few really great spectacle productions of all times.

The scenario for "The Lady of the Harem" was prepared by James T. O'Donohoe, who also wrote the adaptation of "The Wanderer." The story is from James Elroy Flecker's famous stage play, "Hassan."

DEATH OF GOV. SMALL'S WIFE BRINGS FREEDOM TO MAN DOOMED TO HANG

SPRINGFIELD, Ill.—The thud of hammers in the hands of workmen erecting a gallows not only saved Ignatz Potz from the gallows but will make him a free man October 11 1930.

And it was all due to the fact that the noise reached the ears of the wife of Gov. Len Small, who was present when the governor at that time was on trial in Waukegan on charges of having failed to turn over to the state certain interest on funds collected during his term as state treasurer.

When Mrs. Small heard the blows she inquired as to their source and was told that they came from the gallows on which Potz was to be executed for the murder of William Peterson, a motorcycle policeman. So she asked the governor to commute Potz's sentence.

Before the execution, however, Mrs. Small died and the governor remembered her plea and commuted Potz' sentence to life imprisonment.

Then on the fourth anniversary of here death recently the governor again commuted the man's sentence this time to freedom on the date set.

Now residents of Lake county are recalling the sensational trial of Potz and his four companions.

Potz and his mates had borrowed an automobile for a hunting trip and, it is alleged, drank freely. While passing through Winthrop Harbor at a rapid rate they were chased by Peterson on a motorcycle. Suddenly a shotgun was poked through the rear window of a machine, a shot sounded and Peterson hurtled from his cycle dead. The men escaped at that time but later were captured. Potz's companions all shifted the blame to him and there seemed to be some doubt as to his understanding of the proceedings.

First showing New SAFETY STUTZ with safety glass in all windows

"It is a serious question whether manufacturers in the past have given adequate thought to the element of safety in the cars they have sold to the general public. Over a period of years our motor-car manufacturers have stressed everything but safety features...."

F. W. JOHNSON, Director Citizens Safety Committee of Philadelphia at the 1926 National Conference on Street and Highway Safety— SECRETARY HOOVER, Chairman.

WE now announce New SAFETY STUTZ models, including seven-passenger cars, in which every window, as well as windshield, is of special safety-glass.

This eliminates the hazard of injury from flying shattered glass, at front, sides and rear. These New SAFETY STUTZ models are the first cars ever built regularly equipped with safety-glass all around.

The phenomenal sales of the New SAFETY STUTZ attest the success with which this advanced automobile meets the public demand of today.

And the New SAFETY STUTZ, already the world's safest automobile, is now made still safer for its occupants.

No other car has this combination of safety features:

Safety-glass in windshield and all windows. Narrow, clear-vision front corner-posts.

Frame of unequalled strength and rigidity, with integral steel running-boards ("side-bumpers").

Perfect road balance; elimination of side-sway achieved by scientific frame and spring arrangement. Stabilators and long, low-rate flat springs co-ordinated for ideal action.

Unparalleled stability, gained by a radical lowering of the "center of mass" of the car. The resistance to overturn is so great that one side of the car may be raised more than three feet higher than the other without toppling the car over. This lowering of the center of mass is made possible by the New SAFETY STUTZ worm-gear drive, manufactured by Timken.

Hydrostatic four-wheel brakes, developed and built by Timken; greatly increased effective braking surface, with perfect equalization of braking energy at all points on each wheel. Non-leaking, no adjusting; quick, even deceleration—no discomfort to passengers, no skidding, no swerving, no side-sway.

Instant acceleration from ten to fifty miles per hour in less than eighteen seconds; an alertness that quickly pulls the car out of tight places. And speed adequate for all occasions.

The entire car has Underwriters' Class A rating on both fire and theft. It is permanently protected at no cost to the car owner by The Fedco Number Plate System in co-operation with the William J. Burns International Detective Agency.

Furthermore, the owner of each New SAFETY STUTZ, Fedco-numbered, is given insurance against loss of use resulting from theft, with indemnity of five dollars per day, up to thirty days.

We are now showing these New SAFETY STUTZ models which, in addition to their exclusive safety features, have a custom-like smartness of body design and the utmost luxury of appointments.

Here's the Truth About Your Weight

EXCESSIVE THINNESS IS DANGEROUS

Regardless of how well you may feel today—if you are ten or more pounds underweight and have been that way for any length of time — you should frankly and honestly consider the matter seriously.

Ask yourself these questions: Why am I underweight? Can such a condition be natural and perfectly allright? Is it possible for me to be really Healthy—look and feel my best — and still be excessively thin? Why do Life Insurance Companies refuse to sell insurance to those who are apparently in perfect health, but considerably underweight?

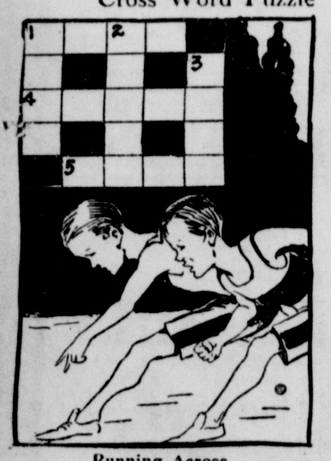

If you care enough about your Health, you will treat this matter seriously, and quickly take steps to correct it — then before long, perhaps a week or ten days, you can look for a beneficial change.

In the successful treatment of Low Vitality and subnormal weight, proper nourishment is of utmost importance. And, in this connection, the powerfully concentrated flesh building value, the physical power and strength, contained in McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets are especially recommended and supplied by Carnahan's Drug Stores and all druggists—60 tablets for 60 cents on a money back if not satisfied plan.

Thousands of users have been benefited—"Gained 10 pounds in 22 days"—"11½ pounds in 60 days"—"15 pounds in six weeks"—This is amazing evidence!

Remember, McCoy's Cod Liver Oil Compound Tablets — actually contain the valuable extractives of Cod Livers — but minus the offensive odor and taste. Tiny, tasteless and pleasant to use. Nearly 20 million tablets sold last month in the United States and Canada alone. If you need a treatment of this kind, try "McCoy's Tablets" today!

Jack Dempsey To Defend Title Against Tunney In Chicago

Expect Tex Rickard to Announce Plans In Statement Today

'Authentic Reports Name Soldiers' Field as Site and September, on or About 16th, as Date; Gibson Asks Promoter to Delay Announcement.

By George A. Strickler.

CHICAGO, July 19.—Despite Tex Rickard's diplomatic denials that a definte decision had been reached in the matter of a Dempsey-Tunney world's heavyweight bout, it was authentically learned today the New York impressario had confided to certain notables close to the sporting public that the bout would be staged here in September, on or about the 16th.

The site, as originally announced in New York Saturday, is said to be Soldiers' field in Grant park, although Rickard declined to confirm this until this afternoon when he has promised an official statement disclosing all details in connection with his visit here and, presumably the announcement of the bout, including the site, the promoter, and the backers.

Two emissaries arrived here this morning from New York to persuade Rickard to delay the issuance of this statement until after the New York Athletic commission meets tomorrow. Rickard received several telephone calls from Gotham yesterday and this morning imploring him to withold his announcement, most notably being one from Billy Gibson, manager of Tunney, who said he had been in conference with Commissioner Muldoon of the New York commission. Rickard was unwilling to disclose the nature of the conference.

Rickard, however, declared these interruptions would have no bearing on the issuance of the statement, which would transpire this afternoon as per schedule.

Will Locate in Chicago.

Chicago will become the promoter's permanent headquarters, he told reporters, if he decides to stage the Dempsey-Tunney bout in this city. Numerous requests have come from western and southwestern people of influence, he said, for him to locate in Chicago, which is better located in a central position and easier accessible for fans from all parts of the country than New York or Boyle's thirty acres. Rickard also believes Chicago offers greater opportunities now than New York.

Tex slipped into Chicago unannounced on Saturday and immediately went into conference with the "committee of five," as yet unidentified, but described by him as "five of the biggest men in Chicago." His only definite admission regarding the committee was that they had formerly dealt in the matter of a world's heavyweight title bout in this city.

"When I make my announcement, the names of the men interested with me in the project will hold public interest in the enterprise," Rickard said. "I will turn the fight over to them and will remain entirely in the background."

What, if any, impression Rickard's announcement will have on the Illinois state boxing commission was a matter of conjecture today, but it was rumored among those reputed to be in the know that the holding of a Dempsey-Tunney bout at this time and the "ingusion" of Rickard would create no little concern at the commission headquarters.

Denies He's Married.

Richard was too busy yesterday and early today issuing denials and counter statements regarding his romance with Miss Maxine Elliott Hodges, 19-year-old actress of Chicago, formerly a well known child actress, to discuss the fight situation at length with reporters.

In the matter of Miss Hodges, who Rickard's friends say he has already married, the promoter declared he was only engaged to the actress and that they would be married in the fall. He gave her age as 25 and said he had known her for eight years.

Distpatches yesterday quoted Miss Hodges as saying they were already married and would make the announcement in the fall. They further declared Rickard had taken a new apartment on Park avenue, in New York and furnished it for his bride. Rickard stopped long enough over his breakfast today to issue further denials to these statements and hurried off to meet the "committee of five."

Miss Hodges is said to be visiting friends here while Rickard negotiates the Dempsey affair with which he expects to break all existing attendance and gate receipts records.

ALL'S WELLS!

As Far as Detroit Southpaw and Cobb are Concerned

The rural mailman who delivers the daily paper—along with the usual letters—on Route No. 5, down Ashland, O., way, can some day inform the proud listeners that he used to deliver mail to Edwin Wells' home.

For Edwin Wells, as a lefthander and member of the Detroit ball club, is hurling his way to fame these days.

He is one of the reasons why the Jungaleers are still in the swim, despite failure of new men to break into the machine, the usual rumors of Ty Cobb being mad at some of his players and asking his ma to keep them out of his yard, and what not.

As this is written Wells is the biggest winner on the Detroit team.

He has pitched four shutout games to date—or had when this was written. One of his interesting feats to date was a run of 28 scoreless innings.

Last year he won 6, lost 9 games. The victories were scattered among the league teams. Cleveland, however, made life miserable for Edwin. They proceeded to sock him just four times. However, Wells indicated that he was in the big show to stick.

Wells and Whitehill give the Detroit club two sweet southpaws. And two that the club should have had for some time. Wells is only 26—passed his twenty-sixth birthday last month. He's a sturdy gent with an easy motion and plenty of confidence.

He has been handicapped in recent weeks by the absence of Johnny Bassler, veteran catcher, who worked with him in all his games until a broken ankle laid the backstop low or thereabouts.

He attracted attention with his pitching for Bethany college and hopped almost directly from the campus to the corral of the Detroit club. The Ludington team signed him after he was graduated, but he was with that outfit only a short time before the Tigers signed him. Quite naturally he needed a bit of seasoning and was sent to the Birmingham team. That was in 1923. Then the Tigers recalled him and have had him ever since.

SKULL PRACTICE

Bill Tilden has won the national clay court title six times. But nobody has predicted he's due to lose the title soon. Nobody cares.

Pirates have hurler named Songer. He must be the perfect pitching participle of sing.

Catcher Gooch, of the Pittsburgh club, was put out of the game for protesting a decision while the Giants were scoring 17 runs in two games the other day. Gooch must have been arguing for the principle of the thing.

Rogers Bresnahan stirs up excitement at Polo grounds when he asks for police protection at players' bench. Folks can't figure out whether he was afraid someone would steal the bats or his new pack of chewing tobacco.

Rogers Hornsby's batting average has slipped so far now that a lot of batters hope to equal it in a couple of years.

George Burns, Cleveland first sacker who leads the league in doubles, plans to go after the tripling title as soon as his broken rib heals.

He fled from the rain and sat under the waterspout.

TAGGING ALL --BASES--

The National league race has developed a merry scramble which tightened up as the result of Cincinnati's defeat by Brooklyn. Only three games separate the Reds and the fifth-place Cubs, with the Giants a game and a half behind the Bruins.

Bob McGraw's pitching was the big gun in Brooklyn's 2 to 1 victory over the Reds. Pete Donohue also was there with bells on but Cincinnati's errors spilled the beans.

The Cardinals nosed out the Phillies in the ninth, 9 to 7, on Southworth's homer. The Quakers slid gracefully back into the cellar.

The Yankees suffered their first shutout of the season when Zachary, of the Browns, blanked them, 4 to 0. Four double plays were made by the Browns.

K. OF C. DEFEATS HEIGHTS SQUAD

Knights of Columbus tossers defeated Pleasant Heights, 10 to 8, on the Heights diamond Friday night.

Gerace started on the slab for the lodgemen, but gave way to Johnson, who, in turn, was supplanted by McKenna. The latter turned in a natty performance, fanning 15 men.

INSIDE GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON,
Maker of 51 Golf Champions.
"Golf's most successful teacher," says "Chick" Evans.

When the left arm is kept rather straight — not rigid—in the back swing there is a feeling of considerable tightness in the grip as the club nears the top. It is O. K. for the grip to be very tight in the hands and wrists, but the player should be careful to keep this tightness just short of actual stiffness. The tightness in the grip exerts quite a pull against the left shoulder. The thing to do when you feel this is to stop the back swing, since the chances are the club will be plenty far enough back and up when this tightening-up feeling occurs. The full-length back swing—that is, all the back swing you require—is probably considerably short of the loose, long back swings you may be using.

CHICAGO HAS "CAFETERIA COURT"; WIVES "HELP THEMSELVES"

CHICAGO.—Chicago's newest "cafeteria court" has been formally opened here, with alimony as the bill of fare!

The Cook county alimony bureau, sponsored by Superior Judge Joseph J. Sabath, has been granted an appropriation for the expense of collecting and distributing the $5,000,000 in alimony paid by divorced husbands to their former mates.

The first "alimony chef" is Mrs. Margaret Denar, of the board of public welfare, long associated in court and social service work.

It will be her duty to accept from husbands the alimony they have been ordered to pay for the support of former wives and children. She will make out checks for the amounts, and forward them to the beneficiaries.

Judge Sabath, who has a record of handling more than 3,000 divorce cases annually, said he believes other judges of the municipal court through whose court many additional divorce suits are settled, will co-operate.

"I don't care so much about the childless wives," said Judge Sabath, in speaking of the bureau's inauguration.

"But every day, mothers appeal to me for assistance in enforcing the payments of alimony. In many cases they are too poor to hire attorneys to press their claims. Even if they do obtain a lawyer's services, he usually collects about one-half of the money thus obtained, as his fee.

"Under the alimony bureau, all this will be dispensed with, and when a man refuses to pay or otherwise fails to meet the court's order, he will find himself in jail."

When Sir Edward Elgar, the noted musician, recently had an inspiration while riding on a London bus he began humming the theme, but was interrupted by an old lady who offered him her seat, saying "You feel ill, don't you?"

With the establishment of national radio broadcasting stations in Denmark, the government has started a campaign to round up listeners who are dodging payment of license fees, only 27,000 of the 100,000 owners of radio sets now being registered.

CHAPTER EIGHTEEN.

DELIA had come in, and was quietly undressing in the bed-room. Bee made up the couch for her. Then Lou left them together. They spoke only of surface things, casually—whether there were covers enough. Bee got a steamer rug from the closet.

Finally Delia spoke, hesitatingly: "You spoke about that girl, Bee. The one that was in love with Arthur—Rockwell." She hesitated over the first name; and then, as if it were a rather hasty afterthought, added the surname. Her voice was low and uncertain. "I was wondering a little—you said she just drifted out. Doesn't anybody know what became of her?"

"Oh, I don't know.' Bee was holding a pillow-slip in her teeth and crowding one of the soft-cushions into it. "It seems to me I heard she worked in a tea-room for a while over on MacDougall street. Probably she needed by going back to her home town. That's what the weak ones generally do."

"That was it, wasn't it! She was weak."

"Oh, yes. It's no place here for that sort." Bee was just tired enough to put a little nervous force into that speech.

"No, of course not," said Delia.

"The people that last in New York seem to have something—talent, courage—something. They have to. Something to give. You can't just take New York. You have to bring something to it if you're to hold your head up. It's no place for a timid little sentimentalist. I suppose what it comes down to is you've got to be a good sport."

"Yes, that's it, isn't it!" said Delia, with an odd, abrupt intensity. She was braiding her pale hair, and looking down at it as her slender fingers twisted the strands together. "That's just the modern quality—being a good sport. I've been wondering whether you were quite—well, quite fair in what you said about Arthur Rockwell."

"Perhaps not."

"I mean whether he could have gone on with her after he'd found out she had nothing real to give him. Wouldn't it be honester, if that was the case—even better—not to go on? Mightn't it have been that his poet nature idealized her at first, and—"

"It might have." There was a dry note in Bee's voice. But Delia standing with puckered brows, was too intent on her own thoughts to be aware of it.

"After all, Bee dear, he is a poet. He lives in a dream world. Wouldn't he have to be understood?" Naively she emphasized those words, much as a girl underscores in writing a letter.

"Oh, yes."

"You can't help thinking about that girl. Mightn't it be that neither of them was really to balme?"

"Oh, certainly."

"After all, what could he have done to her? I mean, if they'd tried it, and it didn't—well, just didn't work out. You could hardly insist that he marry her."

"Make an honest woman of her?" Bee laughed shortly as she uttered the phrase which perhaps more than any other typified the popular Village ridicule of conventional morality.

"Yes, that's what I mean. That wouldn't be—well, modern, would it." This wasn't a question.

"It wouldn't be even intelligent. And now, dear, if you don't mind, I'm going to bed. I feel like a ruin without even ivy to grace it."

She was moving away when Delia spoke again: "Oh, Bee!"

"Yes?"

Lou had come along the hall and was moving about in the bedroom. Delia lowered her voice. "I meant to tell you its been wonderful of you to take me in like this, but—"

"That's nothing, dear. You're perfectly welcome. We love having you."

"But I just couldn't stay on. That wouldn't be right. The fact is, Bee, I've found a room.

"Oh, you have?"

"Yes. That is—" Delia lifted her head and looked straight at her friend. ("She actually wants to tell," thought Bee.) "He—Arthur Rockwell—found it. It's in the house next door to where he is."

Bee stood motionless. What could she say? What did this blundering, pathetic child imagine she could say? Briskly, then, she changed the subject. "Oh, Delia, I plumb forgot." Again that short little laugh. "There's been so much going on tonight I'm afraid I've lost track of everything except myself. I think I've got you a job."

"Really, Bee? How wonderful!" But Delia's thoughts were not on jobs.

"You're to see a Mr. Lane in the morning. I have the address in my bag. And I'd be fairly prompt. By ten, anyway.

Delia's gaze dropped to the floor, then sought again the now frankly yawning Bee. "Do you think—you see, this is Friday, and I thought I might be away over Sunday."

There was nothing one could say to a girl with that hopelessly unreal look on her face. Thinking werily of what her effort to find that job had cost her, Bee turned away.

"Oh, I imagine they could wait until Monday," she said. 'But just the same, I'd see this Mr. Lane in the morning."

"Oh, I will! Of course, Bee! And thank you ever so much for all your kindness!"

In the bedroom Bee laughed once more in that nervous way, but silently. So Delia's cap was over the windmill! And Arthur, of all men! She was fairly rushing into it. Moth and flame stuff! It was odd that the revelation should come as a bit of a shock; and odder yet that it should stir in her breast a touch of dread uncomfortably like what she would have termed, in another, a conservative reaction. But then with a shrug she tumbled into bed and went healthily to sleep.
